D. L. RUPERT QUILTS PLACE AS AUDITOR

City Fiscal Officer Resigns to Take Job With State

EFFECTIVE OCT. 1

Successor Not Named for "Watchdog" of Lima Treasury

City Auditor David L. Rupert Saturday handed to Mayor F. A. Burkhardt his resignation, effective October 1.

Rupert has accepted a position as examiner of municipal offices with the state bureau of inspection and accounting.

He will resign as secretary of the sinking fund at a meeting of the trustees tomorrow.

Rupert is finishing his third term as city auditor of Lima. His present term would expire the first of the year, when the new form of government becomes operative.

During his three terms he has made a record for efficiency in that office. He has earned the title of "watchdog" of the city treasury during the trying times Lima has been passing thru.

He said yesterday, in speaking of his resignation, that he would have tendered it sooner, but felt it was his duty to continue in office until the city bonds, which have been a drug on the market, were disposed of.

This has been accomplished.

In view of his record, it has been generally supposed that Rupert would be retained as auditor when the new commission takes up the reins. Regret was heard in many quarters yesterday when it became known that he had resigned, it being argued that Rupert would be an extremely valuable man to the new administration in view of his familiarity with municipal affairs as they pertain to his office.

Altho Rupert's name has always appeared under the emblem of the Republican party in municipal elections, he has received support from a great body of Democratic voters. In the last city election he led his ticket.

SUCCESSOR NOT CHOSEN

No announcement as to the probable successor for Rupert has been made. It is likely that some action will be taken within a few days.

It is not known whether there will be any other changes in the office due to the resignation of the auditor. Miss Irene Clark is deputy.

HISTORIC BIRD PURSUING FILM STARS ABROAD?

Flock of Rumors Follows Doug and Mary Fairbanks to Europe

NEW YORK — Mary and Doug were Europe-bound on the Olympic Saturday night, pursued by a flock of rumors.

Some of these rumors took the shadowy shape of a historic bird, alleged to be flapping its leisurely way behind the liner.

The pursuer, it was said, was not expected to catch up with the famous movie stars for some time, however.

An "interesting event" in the Fairbanks family has been whispered about several times recently, only to meet with prompt and laughing denial from both interested parties.

The present rumors have attained such widespread circulation that they are current even in Paris, from where it was reported Saturday that Mary and Doug have leased an elaborate apartment for several months.

Some of the other rumors regarding Mary and Doug had to do with a proposed amalgamation of the United Artists and the First National organizations. In this connection it was said they would confer with Charlie Chaplin, who already is in Europe. J. J. McCarthy, personal representative of D. W. Griffith, fourth member of the United Artists, sailed for Europe last week.

DEATH MAY SEAL TRAGIC STORY

Motive for Shooting of Miss Hanan Still Untold

NEW YORK — Miss Mildred Hanan, 26-year-old heiress, lay fighting for life in a Brooklyn hospital Saturday night, while police continued their investigation of her shooting in vain search for a motive.

The "inside story" of the affair on an apartment doorstep, where Miss Hanan was shot by Mrs. Grace Lawes, her chum, who then placed the revolver into her mouth and killed herself, lay sealed between Miss Hanan's lips. Police believe that if she lives, the story may yet be told, but if she dies, the story will die with her. They have reached the unsatisfactory conclusion that it was a case of "insane jealousy."

Mrs. Lawes lost her mind when she learned that John S. Borland, wealthy importer, was paying attention to Miss Hanan who had been her dearest friend for years, police say.

But they were unable to judge from the evidence whether Mrs. Lawes was prompted to kill her chum and then take her own life thru love of Borland or Miss Hanan.

Borland told police she must have been actuated by love of Miss Hanan. He said Mrs. Lawes, who is a divorcee, had never displayed any affection toward him, nor he towards her. Detective Captain James Sullivan went to the hospital to question Miss Hanan, despite her condition.

Relatives said they would allow him but a short time. Miss Hanan told him that Miss Lawes recently had threatened her life. She said she happened to meet Mrs. Lawes on the street several days ago and at that time Mrs. Lawes threatened to kill her. But before the detective had time to question her as to the motive for this sudden hate, relatives told him the time was up and he must leave.

NURSE ARRESTED

Toledo Woman Charged With Violating Drug Act

TOLEDO—Mrs. Jane Luce, 27, a nurse in the Lucas-co hospital, was arrested on Saturday afternoon by city police and is being held for the federal authorities on a charge of violating the Harris drug act.

Theodore Johnson, 27, an engineer, and F. H. Connell, 23, a railroad employee, were arrested at their homes and are being held on the same charge.

It is charged by police that thousands of dollars worth of drugs have disappeared from the county hospital within the last year or so. It is alleged that an organized ring has been responsible for the thefts.

It was also hinted by the police that a number of prominent Toledo men may be involved in the drug thefts.

Two bottles of dope, said to have been taken from the men arrested, are being held as evidence.

M'LAUGHLIN IN SERIOUS AUTO WRECK

Little Girl Run Down by Machine as She Jumps From Ice Wagon

PEDESTRIAN HURT

Workman at Solar Knocked From Platform by Blow From Hammer

Four persons were injured in serious accidents in Lima yesterday, three by automobiles and one in an industrial plant.

The victims were:

T. D. McLaughlin, architect, leg broken in auto smash-up.

Anna Brincefield, 10, 1221 S. Metcalf-st., seriously hurt when hit by an automobile.

Charles C. Creps, 418 Prospect-ave., seriously bruised when hit by an automobile.

John Zigler, E. Third-st., hit on head by sledge hammer while at work at Solar Refinery.

RUNS INTO POLE

McLaughlin, widely known architect and clubman, narrowly escaped death about noon when the accelerator on his car refused to release as he was about to turn into the County club road, just north of the club entrance.

He ran his car into a telephone pole to avoid crashing over the Western Ohio tracks and over an embankment after the emergency brake on the machine was burned out. He was alone at the time.

When picked up by friends who were following, it was found that he was seriously hurt. He was rushed to St. Rita's hospital in another automobile. One leg was found broken below the knee. It is believed he suffered no internal injuries. His car was almost demolished.

CHILD NARROWLY ESCAPES

Little Anna Brincefield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brincefield, miraculously escaped being killed when her dress caught on a grease cup of the automobile which hit her as she jumped from an ice wagon at noon Saturday. She was dragged several yards beneath the machine, but the fact that the dress caught on the grease cup saved her from the heavy wheels of the machine, said to belong to the Cadillac agency here.

She was rushed to a doctor's office here where it was found she had a severe bruise on the back of her head, a cut over one eye and numerous bruises and cuts on her arms and hands. The accident occurred near the child's home. The parents were ready to leave for a visit when the accident occurred.

PEDESTRIAN INJURED

Charles C. Creps was knocked down and badly bruised when he attempted to cross Market-st. at the public square last evening. He was bruised about the body, but the attending physician said he was not dangerously hurt. The automobile which hit him is said to have carried a license issued to H. Jandell, Pearl-st.

WORKMAN IS HURT

John Zigler was knocked from a high platform while at work on a tank at the Solar yesterday afternoon. He was assisting another workman who was using a sledge hammer. Zigler was on the opposite side of a tank and, believing the other had finished with the hammer, peered over the edge of the tank in time to receive a blow from the hammer on the forehead.

He fell about 50 feet, but is reported to have suffered nothing worse than a severe bruise on his head. Physicians said his skull was not fractured by the blow.

The public is taking advantage of the low price of lumber this month and is buying considerable, the announcement said.

The Southern Pine association was the first to announce an increase in price. Shingles will also go higher, according to the Swan Creek Lumber company.

Lumber that formerly cost $40 a thousand feet has been increased to $55 a thousand.

VIRGINIA RAPPE'S TORN WAIST

Virginia Rappe's torn waist, which with the rest of the clothing worn by the film actress at "Fatty" Arbuckle's house party in San Francisco, were important exhibits in the Arbuckle trial.

Veil Drawn On Arbuckle Story

Evidence Produced in Comedian's Case is Unprintable

ATTACK ON GIRL DESCRIBED

Torn Clothing is Also Exhibited in Court

(By M. D. TRACY)
SAN FRANCISCO.—Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, world famous comedian, sat disconsolate in his cell at the city prison Saturday night, after his hardest day in court since he was arrested two weeks ago Saturday charged with the murder of Virginia Rappe, the "best dressed girl in the movies."

His time in court Saturday was only 90 minutes, but he heard Al Semmacher, his friend, and Miss Rappe's former manager, charge that when Virginia was lying naked and prostrate on one of Arbuckle's twin beds the big, baby-faced comedian had tortured her indescribably.

He had seen Miss Rappe's clothing, showing big rips, dangled brazenly before the eyes of a court room full of women, for Semmacher's identification and before the eyes of Miss Durfee, his wife.

Roscoe and Minta, sitting cuddled close together at the bar of justice, watched unfeeling actors portray the first real tragedy of the comedian's life.

Semmacher was cautiously led by the prosecutor thru a story of how on the day following Arbuckle's Labor Day party, which had its climax in the death of Virginia Rappe, he with a party of friends had been in Arbuckle's suite at the hotel here.

The conversation had turned to the day before.

"Did Arbuckle say anything at that time about a piece of ice?" suddenly shot the prosecutor's question.

"He did," was the answer.

"Well,"

QUESTION UNPRINTABLE.
The answer was unprintable. But it did not satisfy the prosecutor.

"Exactly what did Arbuckle say?" demanded the prosecutor.

"I don't want to say his words," said Semmacher.

"I insist they are important," continued the district attorney.

Semmacher hesitated.

"Well, whisper them to the court reporter," suggested the questioner.

Semmacher did.

They were then written on a bit of paper and passed around the counsel table.

Semmacher then told of the midnight meeting in the offices of Sid Gaurman, Las Angeles motion picture theatre owner, when he, Arbuckle, and Lowell Sherman determined to come to San Francisco after hearing of the death of Virginia Rappe.

Semmacher denied he had gone to Gaurman's theater that night by ac-

INVESTIGATE REPORTS OF WRONGDOING

Civil Service Board to Conduct Court of Inquiry

ROUGH TO GIVE AID

Evidence in Crisenberry Case Impels Body to Act

That a wholesale investigation of the police department is to be made by the civil service commission, beginning Monday, was the statement made by Francis W. Durbin, president of the board, Saturday night.

According to Durbin, it is the purpose of the board to ascertain if there is merit to a multitude of rumors, gossip and innuendo that has been bandied about for some months past and if so, the board will call upon Mayor Burkhardt and Safety Director Dorris to take action accordingly. By filing charges against men whose records are not clear, if any, and forcing them out of the department.

"On the other hand," Durbin said, "if we find, after a searching probe, that the alleged instances of wrongdoing on the part of the city's guardians of the peace are merely idle gossip, without foundation in fact, we feel that the police should be given a clean bill of health. Those who are faithful to their duty and personally obey the laws which they are employed to see that others obey, will have no fear of the rigid investigation it is intended by the board to prosecute," Durbin asserted.

BOARD HAS WIDE POWERS

The civil service board has the right, under the law, and it is the duty of that body, to subpoena witnesses, marshal information and weigh evidence when there is reason to believe that any city department that comes within the purview of the board is not being conducted properly, or where there is evidence of wrongdoing, real or fancied.

"There have been so many things said in the past several months affecting the police department," Durbin stated Saturday night, "that we feel it our duty to go into the situation thoroughly, since the evidence presented in the case of Roscoe Crisenberry, city detective, charged with drunkenness and immorality, indicates that the department needs a weeding out or has been grossly and unjustly misrepresented. We simply want to get at the real facts and intend to do so, regardless of who may, or may not, be hurt. Our investigation will be a sweeping one. E. H. Downing and W. Zeitz and myself are in accord in this determination."

"Our plans of procedure have not been thoroughly worked out, but the probe will start at once and will be widespread and searching. If the things that are being drifted about concerning the police department are true, a weeding out should occur promptly. If they are not true, we feel that the department should be set right with the public."

DORRIS IN THE DARK

Safety Director D. W. Dorris, queried Saturday night concerning the determination of the civil service board to go to the bottom of conditions in the police department, professed ignorance of the plan.

"I have not been informed concerning such a move and know nothing about it," the safer said. "I have no comment to make save that I am adhering to a determination to refrain from discussing city affairs over the telephone at this time of the night (11 o'clock) with newspaper reporters. I have so informed reporters and I do not care to be called at my home at such a late hour."

Dorris would say whether he believed such an investigation was warranted. In fact, the brief conversation the reporter had with the safer over the telephone was confined to objections voiced by Dorris at being called up.

ROUGH SAYS "MAKE IT THORO"

"I hope that the proposed investigation will be made sweeping, rigid and thorough," said Police Chief O. I. Roush Saturday night when informed of the intentions of the civil service body. If there is anything wrong in my department, I want to know it. So far as I am personally concerned, I have no fear whatever and shall lend the board every assistance in uncovering any wrongdoing that may exist. They can rely on me to lay the cards on the table. The sooner the investigation is started, the better it will suit me," Roush asserted. "There has been too much idle talk. Gossip and rumor has been worked overtime. It's time for a showdown. If the department needs a cleaning out, let it come. But if the rumors of wrongdoing are bunk, as I know full well a lot of them are, I feel that the men accused unjustly should be set right with the public. An investigation of some of those who are so anxious to knock the department might bear fruit," Roush said.

"That the determination of the civil service board to go into the police situation thoroughly was prompted by

ACTIVE SEASON FOR DEVOTEES OF MUSIC NEAR

Wedding Events Planned for Early Fall Days, With Many During Month of October—Calendar Indicates Coming Week Will be Busy One In Society

(By ROSEMARY CHRISTEN)

SOCIETY'S favorite organists, vocalists, violinists and cellists will soon again find themselves in the midst of a somewhat active season, affording soft and melodious music, which is so very essential to every wedding ceremony. Many brides-to-be prefer the cooler and less sultry days of the early autumn to the summer days for that happiest of all days—their wedding day.

The year 1921 has been unusual for its number of weddings, the majority of them being very informal and characterized by marked simplicity. During the delightful month of October, brides will continue to tread stately steps thru the church aisles or be escorted to improvised cars in their homes.

The coming week will be a busy one as the calendar already indicates. The state convention of the Kiwanis clubs will be held in this city Tuesday and Wednesday and from present evidences much time and attention will be devoted to the success of the convention by not only the local members but also by their wives.

Thursday the opening meeting of the Woman's Music club will be held at Memorial Hall, at 3 p. m. The interesting feature of the afternoon will be the reading of the play, "Poly of the Circus," by Miss Mildred Lewis.

Beginning with November 14th for one week at Central High school there will be another lecture series given by Miss Ackerman, of Chicago, who is spoken of as the most traveled woman in the U. S. Her subjects are quite varied in scope and character as are follows: "Job Psychology," "China," "Famous People I Have Met," "The New World" and "South America." The funds derived from this very interesting course of lectures are to be used for the Lima Public Library. The lectures are to be under the direction of the City Federation of Women's clubs and bid fair to start a wave of interest in intellectual affairs in all organizations affiliated with the federation.

The women of the Mooseheart Legion Chapter 52, are making extensive arrangements for a "home coming picnic" to be held in Moose all, corner Main and Spring-sts., Wednesday evening. All legionnaires and their families are invited. All are asked to kindly bring well filled baskets. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m. After dinner dancing and cards will be enjoyed and a pleasant evening's entertainment is assured to all who attend. Splendid music has been furnished for the occasion.

Thursday at 3 p. m. the first meeting of the new year of the Woman's Music club will be held at Memorial Hall in the form of a matinee recital. The interesting feature will be the reading of the play "Poly of the Circus" by Miss Mildred Lewis. Miss Lewis is a reader of exceptional ability and all times is a delight to her audience. She is a graduate of the Emerson School of Oratory, Boston and of the Ohio University, Athens. She has been engaged in lyceum work extensively and for two seasons was with the Coit Alber Chautauqua as well as with the Independent Chautauqua for several seasons. During her stay in this city, Miss Lewis will be with her aunt, Miss Will R. Roberts, of Oakwood-pl.

Preceding Miss Lewis' appearance the music club composed of Miss Leona Feltz, pianist; Mrs. Gale Dunifon, violinist and Mrs. Andrew Diamond, cellist will play the opening number.

All active members of the club as well as members of the board will be hostesses for this occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Sharpley of W. Market-st. entertained as their guest during the past week, B. H. Byron of New York City.

LOVELY MATERIALS FASHION TEA GOWN

This stunning tea gown is made of pale blue chiffon brocaded in silver. It is made on straight, Grecian lines and hangs from the shoulders. Wings of gray chiffon edged with a single row of sequins are draped at the shoulders and take the place of sleeves. A silver cord marks the waistline, but there is no other trimming on the entire robe.

It can readily be seen how simple it would be to make such a gown for seams up the sides, a hem and binding at the armholes and neck are all the sewing necessary.

Mrs. Luah M. Butler, of W. Spring-st., has as her week-end guests, Dr. Armitage Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shiveole and daughter, Virginia and Robert Whitmore, all of Dayton.

Frank H. Holmes of W. Market-st. left for Ann Arbor, Mich., to resume his course in chemical engineering at the University of Michigan.

The last week in October, Cincinnati will be the mecca for quite a number of Lima club women, who will attend the state federation meeting there.

Cincinnati Branch meeting of the Foreign Missionary Societies will be held in this city at Trinity M. E. church, October 11th to 14th. The branch embraces six states including Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and West Virginia. About 300 delegates are expected to attend this meeting. Miss Howey is a daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. M. C. Howey. Rev. Howey is a former pastor of the Epworth M. E. church of this city but is residing in Springfield, O., at the present time.

Miss Howey went as a missionary to Japan in the fall of the year, 1916 and is now one of the principal teachers in the University of Nagasaki, Japan. (Kwassui Jo Gakko, meaning "Fountain of Luring Water," is the name of the university.)

Miss Howey has spent her summer vacation in China with her sister, Mrs. Ruth Howey Lowry and is now on her way home for a furlough, expecting to arrive in Seattle, Washington, September 29th. She will go directly to her parents' home in Springfield and will come to Lima for the Cincinnati branch meeting. She will have a prominent place on the program. Miss Howey is supported by Trinity church in her missionary work.

Rev. and Mrs. Howey will accompany their daughter to Lima and will be entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Bryan, of W. Spring-st. News of Miss Howey's coming to this country was cabled by Bishop Herbert Welch, of Korea.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Douchman, of Ft. Wayne, is the week-end guest of Mrs. Helen Smith Gibbs, of Jacksonville, Fla., who is spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. Josephine Smith, of Lakewood-ave.

Mrs. Herbert Shippe, of Bellefontaine-ave, extended the hospitality of her home Friday to an all day meeting of the Delightful Dinner club. At noon a delicious dinner was served. The afternoon hours were enjoyed informally and in an interesting contest, Mrs. F. H. Nelson was successful. The club adjourned to meet in a month with Mrs. Charles Condit, of W. Circular St.

Mrs. W. M. Davies, of Elmwood-pl. and son, Dr. T. O. Davies, of Cebu, Ruabon, North Wales and granddaughter, Miss Nina are home from Frankfort, Ind., where they visited with relatives and friends.

The program will be of a musical nature principally, the music committee being in charge. This will be the first regular meeting of the chapter, which now numbers 61 resident members and 21 non-resident.

Officers are Mrs. F. C. Beam, regent; Mrs. Willard Price, vice-regent; Mrs. E. B. Taylor, secretary; Mrs. B. A. Gramm, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Gamble, registrar; Mrs. J. R. Members of the Franklin club gathered at the home of Mrs. Henry Blosser of S. West-st., Friday for their initial meeting of the club year. During the afternoon election of officers and outlining of the plans for the coming year took place. The following officers were chosen: Mrs. F. T. Priest, president; Mrs. F. W. Burden, vice-president; Mrs. Charles Rode, secretary; Mrs. A. C. Knipp, treasurer and Mrs. W. T. Jacobs, press reporter. Mrs. Weller is better prepared for this work than most women as she is a fine linguist and has not only been a great traveller but has also lived in India.

Members of the Sigma Kappa sorority opened their new year Friday with a wicker roast held at Hovey's Park. Each member invited a guest for the occasion. All met at the home of Miss Bernetta Ross, W. High-st and "biked" to a spot suitable for the roast. At the conclusion of the roast, dancing was enjoyed at the home of Miss Lucille Burkhardt, W. Elm-st. The gathering Friday marked the first of a series of enjoyable affairs which will be held thruout the winter months. The members are all anticipating a prosperous year.

Guests for the occasion included Misses Elizabeth Atmur, Mary Dille, Corinne Burroughs, Mary Mercer, Helen Herman, Bossie Bowers and Serelda Wood.

There will be a called meeting of the Day Nursery Board Tuesday at 10 a. m. at the nursery. All members urged to attend.

OHIO FEDERATION NEWS

An important element in successful club work is emphasized in a message this week from Miss Alice Boardman, chairman of library extension for the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs. "Travel is not necessary for gaining knowledge of other races and countries," she says, "for this same knowledge and understanding can be gleaned from reading the proper books."

Miss Boardman would have all children taught to know the outstanding figures in American literature. "Let me urge every parent to read to the children every day of their lives until they are able to read for themselves," she declares. "Let me urge you to recognize the importance of this reading, for we all know full well that the early years are the impressionable years. Your librarian will be glad to select and furnish the books you will need. Your efforts and your sacrifice will be repaid a hundredfold in the happy home hours your children will never forget."

Miss Boardman's address is state library, statehouse, Columbus.

CHESAPEAKE CLUB WOMEN are placed in a class of "superlative progressive." Better roads and better schools are engaging their attentive consideration and they mean to have both, according to Mrs. E. M. Martindill, president of the Woman's Mutual Improvement club at Chesapeake.

"We are thinking, reading and studying as never before, to keep pace with 'Friend Husband' and in the making of better wives and mothers," writes Mrs. Martindill. The Chesapeake Woman's Mutual Improvement club has supported a French orphan for four years and expects to do so another year. It is planning to do some club extension work this year and effect the organization of clubs in two or three neighboring towns.

"Let me say to the woman who is restless and seeking new interests—join a club," Mrs. Martindill advises. "You will find greater and warmer friendships and time well spent. With the enfranchisement comes a new responsibility."

OHIO FEDERATION NOTES
Seventeen club women from Nelsonville, the girlhood home of the Ohio Federation's president, Mrs. William H. Sharp, Columbus, will attend the state convention at Cincinnati, in a body.

Scottie McKenzie Frazier, of Alabama, will speak at the state convention on "What Shall We Do With Our Talents?"

Toledo club women are busy in behalf of the election on the city council of Mrs. G. C. Bittner, first vice president of the Toledo federation, and for the election as members of the board of education of Mrs. Karl Flickinger and Dr. Mary Law.

Ohio club women are expected to foster many practical movements this fall. In Toledo the smoke committee, representing the Toledo Woman's club, the League of women's organizations, under the chairmanship of Mrs. F. C. Titus, has presented to council an ordinance designed to relieve Toledo of its smoke nuisance.

Marion's Lecture-Recital club has reorganized for the year with Mrs. Harold K. Mouser as its president again. The club's initial rehearsal this year was directed by Samuel Richards Gaines, of Columbus, composer-trainer. The club is planning to celebrate "Ohio Day" with a program of Buckeye selections at the Harding high school and Mr. Gaines is to return again to direct the rendition of three of his own compositions. The program will be presented October 21.

Alcron has a home and school league. It was organized to better conditions of child life and to teach motherhood as a profession. The league is made up of thirty-six branch organizations.

It is announced that the Marion federation will make a specialty of welfare work this year. With the approach of winter it is the consensus of opinion among club women that this work will be the line feature in every club's program of real activity.

Members of the Delta Sigma sorority entertained with a benefit bridge in the attractive Crystal room of the Hotel Argonne, Saturday afternoon. Clusters of lovely flowers were used in the effective adornment. In the receiving line were Miss Bess Sharpley, president; Miss Gertrude Boese, chairman of the entertainment committee and her committee including Misses Martha Roby, Nell Rigley and Luca Mae Gallaspie. A delightful musical program was presented. Mrs. Clarence Klinger sang two love lyrics, "East Indian Lament" by Flinden and "When Love is Kind" an English Love lyric. She was accompanied by Miss Mary K. Roby. In the bridge games Mrs. M. P. Goetschius and Mrs. Vernon Fisher were successful. Tables were arranged in the Crystal Room and on the mezzanine. At 5 o'clock an exquisitely appointed tea was served during which Mrs. Donald McAdaff violinist and Miss Mary K. Roby, pianist, played an informal musical program.

HER EARNINGS EXCEED HUSBAND'S

MRS. FRANCES PARKINSON KEYES

NORTH HAVERHILL, N. H.—(By N. E. A. Service)—To be the wife of a United States senator would satisfy most women's ambition.

To mother three lively boys would keep most women occupied.

But this is only part of it with Frances Parkinson Keyes, whose revenues from her writings exceed the salary of her husband as senator from New Hampshire.

Mrs. Keyes is putting a new novel, "The Career of David Nobel," on the market in October.

Also she is vice president of the League of American Penwomen and business manager of their magazine, "The Penwoman," vice president of the Children of the American Revolution; adviser on the National Council of the Y. W. C. A.; state chairman for New Hampshire of the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association; head of the publicity work of the Congressional Club, which issues a weekly bulletin; and—

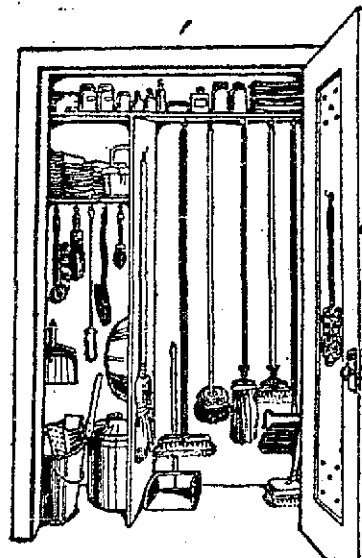

But to exhaust the list would merely exhaust the reader.

It was the triple duties of writing, and rearing her boys, and carrying out her social obligations as the wife of the governor of New Hampshire—for it was from the governorship that the senator stepped to his seat in the Senate—that prepared Mrs. Keyes for her many present duties.

"I made more than a thousand calls in the capital last year," she says—and this is the more remarkable when it is noted that the Keyes do not keep a car.

Friends speak of her as "the woman who always has time"—for no matter how many or pressing the demands on her, she always seems to find the precious minutes for any duty.

CLEANING-TOOL CLOSET

Be sure to arrange a cleaning-tool closet when you make the changes which fall housecleaning always brings.

It should be just as near the center of your work as possible and should provide adequate space for all of your cleaning paraphernalia. The latter must, of course, be kept in spot and span condition. If the closet can be in a place where holes can be bored in the floor for ventilation, so much the better, for cleaning things, too slowly kept, will eventually acquire an unpleasant odor.

GINGER CANDY

B OIL over a quick fire a pound of granulated sugar and 1-2 pint of water. When dissolved mix a spoonful of finely powdered Chinese ginger with two or three ounces of the sirup and then stir in the grated rind of a large lemon. Continue to boil until a spoonful dropped on a cool plate stiffens. Remove from the fire and drop from a spoon on buttered tins.

GEMS OF DISTINGUISHED PEOPLE

By J. W. Puetz

The Empire of Russia had the most gorgeous and splendid collection of diamonds of any country in the world, with the possible exception of Persia, and the Sultan of Turkey is also said to possess many wonderful diamonds and other gems. In 1791 the jewels of the French Crown aggregated nearly thirty million francs, and the royal family of Brazil was said to possess diamonds of great value and also the Crown of Portugal.

The historical or traditional association of gems with the names of famous personages makes interesting reading. Charlemagne fastened his mantle with a diamond-studded clasp, Louis, Duke of Anjou, possessed a regal collection of gems as far back in 1360.

In 1407 the Duke of Burgundy gave a banquet to the King of France, at which the guests received as souvenirs eleven diamonds set in gold.

Pope Sixtus IV. received a diamond in 1475 from Charles The Bold, who also presented a large diamond to Louis XI. of France.

In 1500 Pope Julius II owned a diamond which was engraved and which is one of the few examples of diamond sculpture. Agnes Sorrel famous in the time of Charles VI. was the first French woman to lead fashion in the wearing of diamonds.

The Shah of Persia possesses a vast collection of rare gems, among which is the "Sea of Light," weighing 186 carats.

The Empress Maria Theresa was the first woman sovereign of Austria who displayed among the crown jewels, the Florentine jewel, which weighs over 139 carats.

Very few indeed, are the favored individuals who can boast such a collection of jewels, but the American is content if what little he shall have shall be of the highest class. If his ring contains a stone of only a carat, it will be as good in quality as those of the Crown if he satisfies himself that he has chosen a jeweler of whom he can

LETTERS TO LOVERS

By Winona Wilcox

(BY WINONA WILCOX)

"Mate Love" is a stock phrase in fiction and drama today. It is part of the frank Greenwich village vocabulary which is making its devastating progress toward the west.

Today it cropped up in a letter from a young man who desires a wife. He is in a dilemma, apparently, because he refuses to see life as a continuous movie show and perpetual jazz.

"Where can I find a girl willing to face the serious side of life?" is his abrupt opening.

"I do not own an auto nor a diamond. I do not care to dance.

"Have had a fair education and like to read. Am not a bashful guy, neither am I a bluffer. Have a little pile of faults, but try to keep to the ten commandments.

"Have worked up from digging ditches, thru an office, to a business of my own which pays me $5000 a year.

"I want to marry but I don't see the girl who would settle down to the peace and quiet of a home, no matter how finely I furnished it.

"I am sick of taking three meals a day in a crowd. I'd be mighty good to a wife who wasn't above doing the cooking. Even if I can well afford a girl to help, I'd like a wife to take care of our home herself. That happens to be my idea of a home. I'm tired of boarding houses.

"But I can't find a girl who wouldn't be willing to let me work my head off so that she could fold her hands. There are others, but where?

"I've met attractive girls who were capable in an office, but I felt that when they married, they would want to stop working.

"I've been received in their homes where I had opportunity to notice how their mothers do the housework! I wasn't supposed to see it! Lots of girls have had their heads turned by life as it is lived in the movie plots. They are willing enough to talk about soul mates, and ideal love, and mate love! Yes, even that. They call it being pals with a man, or good chums — when they're that frank in their talk! It's mighty odd, how they like to discuss love with a man.

"But whenever I tried to find out if they knew anything about domestic science, they all hedged. I suppose because they don't know whether a soup bone ought to go in to cold or hot water.

"Now I had to be trained for the business of making money. As I see it, housework is a business for which a girl requires some special education.

"I'd go back to work at $2 a day, if I could find a girl who would be glad to do her share of the practical things about a house.

"I don't want a drudge. I want an old-fashioned wife."

This delightful exposition of what one man wants in a bride is printed with no thought of assisting him in his search, but only as presenting to girls the criticism of an observing person, and as an outline of the model of a wife desired by one who plainly would make a devoted husband.

STATE HEALTHIER TO SNIFF RIVER

Protests Against Offensive Odor Pouring in

COLLETT-ST FOLKS COMPLAIN

Claim Traps Lacking in Sewer Catch Basins

Sufferers from the state health department will be in Lima shortly to get a few whiffs of river aroma, Dr. J. B. Poling, city health officer, announced Saturday.

W. H. Ditto, chief of the division of sanitary engineering, informed Dr. Poling a few days ago that he expected to visit Lima in the next three weeks to investigate complaints regarding "Haw Creek."

While here, the reported absence of traps in basins connecting with the Collett-st sewer, will be investigated. Ever since the sewer has been built in Collett-st residents of that thoroughfare have had a good deal to say.

PROTEST IS FILED

There has been considerable protest, and according to Dr. Poling, complaints have recently gone into the state health department that there are no traps in the catch basins. An unpleasant odor is said to come from them.

Traps are properly installed each basin connecting with the sewer, according to G. V. Guyton, 219 N. Collett-st, inspector on the new sewer. Most of them were constructed before the sewer went in, he stated, and connect with a small sewer still in the street.

Condition of the river in Lima is such that the state is planning drastic steps, is the opinion of Dr. Poling. Complaints from residents down stream are reaching the department daily. The condition at Allentown and Elida, is described as worse than in Lima, the source of pollution.

According to Dr. Poling, he was told by Ditto that lack of money on the part of the city will not deter the state from acting, if conditions warrant.

HEALTHIER'S CRITICISM

Failure to commence work on the intercepting sewer system this year is causing criticism.

No other municipal work should have been attempted by the city, it is claimed, until the intercepting sewer and disposal plant are built. "It is of small use," Dr. Poling stated, "to beautify the city's front yard and allow an unsanitary condition and nuisance to exist in the back yard. All the favorable impression that may be created on visitors by the boulevard lighting system is killed by one whiff from the river."

INVESTIGATE REPORTS

evidence brought out in the Crisenberry case, was stated Saturday night by F. W. Durbin, chairman of the board.

The board heard evidence in the Crisenberry case Friday afternoon and at its conclusion announced that decision would be made Monday Saturday. However, another delay was announced Saturday, the members stating that there are points they desire to clear up before making public their findings. Crisenberry will be informed Monday whether the charges brought against him by Safety Director Morris are upheld or dismissed, and whether his dismissal from the force is made permanent or he is returned to duty.

No statement was heard from Mayor Burkhardt concerning his opinion on the proposed sweeping probe of the police department. A telephone call at his residence Saturday night at 11 o'clock failed to bring a response.

KILLS FOUR, SELF

Colorado Insane Man Runs Amuck Among Farmers

MONTE VISTA, Colo. — The search for William Bailey, insane ranch hand, who killed four persons near here, ended late Saturday when his body was found in the thick underbrush along the Rio Grande railroad tracks.

Bailey had killed himself, authorities believed. Bailey took a rifle, walked to the farm of A. V. Skroh, a neighbor and shot Mrs. Skroh, killing her instantly. Then he walked to the field where Skroh was working. Skroh's body was found, shot thru the back. Next he killed Petty Paglev, a laborer, employed by Skroh. Bailey then walked a mile and a half to the farm of Ed Heilman and killed the latter as he stood on his front porch. He disappeared into the timber. State guardsmen and sheriff's posse had conducted a country

CLASS FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN WILL OPEN

Children, heretofore denied the advantages of an education because of being crippled, will have an opportunity to attend school in Lima. This is possible thru the benevolent work of the Rotary club, which has been providing for the treatment of a number, and a new plan which makes funds available for their transportation to and from school.

A class of 14 will begin tomorrow. Superintendent Collins said last night. Of this number, nine are those treated under the program carried out by the Rotary club. It is expected the class will be increased.

The club will fit up the school room with the necessary cots and other furnishings needed in caring for the children at the school. The board of education will provide the desks and other school equipment. The funds for the work will come from the state under the new law.

The teacher will be Miss Florence Moore, who taught for a number of years at Washington school.

GERMAN FINANCES WORRY FRANCE

Slump in Mark Causes Fear in Paris

COMPETITION IS ALSO FELT

Goods Flood Market As Result of Indemnity Plan

By J. W. T. MASON
NEW YORK.—The German mark is falling because Germany is continuing to issue paper money without increasing her gold reserve.

At present the German government has one gold mark in reserve for every 90 paper marks being circulated. The proportion should be one in two or one in three for the German currency to be on a safe basis.

The fall in marks has nothing to do with any effort by Germany to avoid paying the war indemnity.

The indemnity can be paid for the most part only in German goods.

The fall in marks will make it more difficult for Germany to purchase raw materials abroad which must be used in producing manufactured articles to be sold in foreign markets for meeting the indemnity demands.

But, by no possibility could the German government deliberately cause a fall in marks so as to compel German manufacturers to pay more for their raw materials.

French criticism of Germany is deliberately arranged to go into bankruptcy as a way of wiping out the indemnity have no basis, in fact.

German bankruptcy would not disturb the amount of actual goods in Germany, and these goods are the counter in the indemnity matter.

It is more likely that the French criticism of Germany's financial weakness is preparatory to an admission by French financiers and economists that the time has come when France herself cannot continue to accept German goods on the indemnity account.

These goods already are beginning to disturb the French markets at home and abroad. French manufacturers are feeling the enforced German competition.

Germany continues to pay the indemnity in the form of her own manufactured articles for an indefinite time, France will become Germany's economic vassal.

It is now being admitted in official financial circles in Paris that a new way must be found for accepting the indemnity. No feasible method of acceptance has yet been devised. If none is forthcoming, then France will have to let Germany off.

The French fear of German bankruptcy, therefore, is an artificial fear. The greater fear in France is that France herself will have to admit before long that Germany must be prevented from paying.

There will not mean France's own bankruptcy. There is still a large margin in France for increasing taxation, and enormous sums of money can be saved if France will reduce her present standing army of 800,000 men to a reasonable basis.

By these methods of increasing domestic revenue and decreasing governmental expenses, France eventually will be able to safeguard herself against financial disaster without the German indemnity.

The decline in value of the German mark is one more argument showing that the heavily depreciated paper money of Europe never will return to par.

How to stabilize the mark is a problem that has no solution in sight. The difficulty is to balance the external and internal value of the mark.

DIFFERENCE IN VALUE
Before the war, a mark was worth twenty-five cents.

At present a mark can be bought in America for about one cent. But when that mark is taken into Germany, it has a purchasing power of approximately five cents.

When whatever is paid for a mark abroad represents the purchasing value of the mark in Germany, Europe's financial problem will have been solved.

MORRIS RESIGNS FROM C. C. BOARD; WINTER IN PIEDMONT REGION

Resignation of J. E. Morris from the directorate of the Lima Chamber of Commerce was announced Saturday.

In a letter to R. B. Dunn, president, Morris states that he is planning to spend the winter in the Piedmont region at Asheville, S. C., and believes that during his absence an active member of the board should be appointed.

His successor may be chosen during the coming week, J. Kennard Johnson, manager, stated.

ESTATE CLAIMED ON AGREEMENT

Violetta Grayne Brings Suit For Mrs. Noble's Property.

Suit to gain possession of the property left by her aunt, Mrs. Violetta Noble, was filed in common pleas court, Saturday by Mrs. Violetta Grayne, wife of William Grayne, Obs. Lippincott, as administrator of the estate of Violetta Noble, is made defendant in the action, as well as Daniel Teetters, a brother of the deceased and other distant relatives.

The estate consists of two lots located in Lakeview, valued at $80; eight lots located in Columbus, valued at $50 each, lot 3768 in Sanford's addition to Lima, (turntable valued at $217 and a "Christina" savings account for $70.

It was in 1892, the petition sets forth, that Mrs. Noble entered into a verbal contract with John Teetters, her brother, to give his daughter Violetta Teetters, into the care and keeping of Mrs. Noble, the petition says.

Assertion is made that Violetta was accepted in the relation of daughter and so treated and cared eight years in Columbus during their life-time. In sickness she nursed them and while Mrs. Noble was in ill health, saved her as a daughter, it is claimed.

After her marriage to William Grayne, this relationship was not severed. Charles Noble died in April, 1920 and his wife in September, 1920.

Mrs. Grayne sets forth her aunt failed to provide for her in a will according to the verbal contract. She also says that Otis Lippincott, as administrator, refuses to carry out the terms of the verbal agreement.

She seeks aid of the court to secure possession of the real and personal property of Mrs. Noble.

IRWIN TALKS ON DISARMAMENT

Says Politicians Will Make Football of Conference

ADVANTAGE THEIR ONLY AIM

Tells of Game the Senators Are Playing

(BY ALICE ROHE)

SCITUATE, Mass. — (N. E. A. Service).—"The barrier to disarmament is raised by the politician class. Like any other class, resents anything that hurts its business."

"All politicians of all nations represented in the coming conference are going into that conference without any sincere interest of doing anything."

"They hope only to use the conference for a ground of jockeying for national advantage."

WILL IRWIN. The speaker was Will Irwin, famous war correspondent, writer, student of international relations, whose book, "The Next War," has been called "The Uncle Tom's Cabin" that shall shock the paralyzed conscience of man to activity, that war shall cease."

"There is no question in my mind," continued Irwin, looking out over peaceful Scituate Harbor from the piazza of his summer home, "that the common people want no more war. They want peace at any price. They are sore on disarmament conventions. They are sick of the military business which is causing them taxes and other burdens."

"People of England, France, Germany, Italy, the United States—all countries I know—can attribute the trouble about disarmament to the politician class. The business of politicians is largely promoted by excessive nationalism and chauvinism."

"This was shown plainly at the peace conference, regarding the League of Nations."

"The attitude of the politician class is shown by the fact that the proposition for a disarmament conference was passed by the Senate by a unanimous vote, although among the senators are many who do not want disarmament."

"The hope of the disarmament conference is this: The politicians want to do something they consider popular. If they are persuaded the people want disarmament, there is hope."

"I have been surprised at the strength of the disarmament sentiment, which might be called almost a pacifist sentiment."

"If between now and the conference we can crystallize sentiment into some sort of action, we can force the politicians."

"If we do not force them, I believe that we'll see bankruptcy of several nations or a war which the laze was by comparison a mere skirmish."

IN NO HURRY TO REMOVE MARKET-ST LIGHT POSTS

The five-lamp light posts to be purchased by the city from W. Market-st property owners will not be taken down until the entire system is near completion, John Reed, chairman of the lighting committee of council, stated Saturday.

"We will allow the merchants to use the lights as long as possible," Reed declared. "To take them down now would deprive them of lights for several weeks."

The decision for the posts is not officially closed, it was stated Saturday, as the ordinance authorizing their purchase has to be advertised for ten days.

NO FIRE ALARMS FOR THREE DAYS IS RECORD

Not an alarm of fire in three days is the record of the Lima fire department up to 6 p. m. Saturday.

"We are not hoping for any," commented Chief John Mack, "as the city's car is being painted and overhauled and I don't want to make a run in my own."

Fierce Fighting Breaks Out Again in Belfast

TWO KILLED, FOUR WOUNDED

New Note Sent to De Valera by Lloyd George

BELFAST.—Crown forces gained control of the situation shortly before midnight after fierce rioting between Protestant and Catholic mobs had lasted throughout Saturday.

Machine gun volleys poured down the streets in the battle area, sent both factions scurrying for cover and definitely quelled the fighting, although there and there a sniper continued to fire occasional shots until after midnight. Early Sunday everything was quiet.

The death toll in Saturday's fighting was two, with four wounded.

NEW NOTE TO IRISH

LONDON.—Premier Lloyd George has prepared a new note to President De Valera, proposing an Irish peace conference early in October, it was reported reliably Saturday night.

The note is understood to recognize De Valera's virtual withdrawal of his claim to Irish sovereignty. This was the first obstacle which caused the calling off of the conference previously proposed.

The note, it is understood, insists that Britain will not consent to discuss separation of Ireland from the empire.

The October conference must be entered by the Irish delegates with this distinct proviso.

Lloyd George's note has been submitted to other members of the British cabinet and to the Irish MAY CALL ELECTION

Lloyd George now is threatening to precipitate a general election if the Irish negotiations fail, feeling confident the voters will support him and re-elect his ministry. He would blame the reactionaries for failure of the parleys.

Winston Churchill, speaking to an audience in Dundee, Scotland, on Ireland, declared he saw no foundation for hope.

"The Irish position is still uncertain," he warned. "An Irish republic means inevitable civil war."

"I am profoundly disappointed at De Valera's rejection of home rule," he said. "A lasting peace in Ireland would be helpful, not only to the empire, but to the entire world."

"Our offer is generous and sincere. But we must insist on allegiance to the king, whether he be the king of Britain or Ireland."

"We have reached the end of our tether."

The mystery of the situation Saturday night lay in the riots in Belfast.

TOURISTS HAPPY AT DENVER

City's Camp Ground Provides All Conveniences

DENVER.—(By N. E. A. Service).—Modern motor gypsies find that life at the municipal camp ground here cannot be described as "roughing it."

The grounds are equipped with all the convenience of a first-class hotel. Here are some of the features which make camping in Denver a luxury:

A mammoth clubhouse, suggestive of a country club, with a restaurant, pool room, barber shop, soda fountain and hot and cold showers for men and women.

The largest dance hall in the west with an eight-piece orchestra, where campers may dance for 6 cents a couple.

A steam table, where hot food to be eaten around the camp fire may be bought.

An eight-tub electric laundry, electric irons and 48 sanitary lavatories.

A completely equipped children's playground, a tennis court, a race track and three baseball diamonds.

An automobile repair shop, a filling station, a vulcanizing shop and a battery service station.

Police guard is maintained day and night, attendants are on duty in the club house, and a road information bureau has two experts at the visitors' service.

Ten thousand cars, bearing more than 37,000 passengers, visited the grounds this season. The grounds contain 160 acres and will accommodate twice as many persons as have used it yet.

Thomas Cox, lessee of the shops, is under heavy bond not to profiteer.

ENGLISHMEN ARE DOING IT NOW

Actually Seen Removing Coats On Hot Days.

THEY EAT ICE CREAM, TOO

Unusual Heat Works Miracles Over There.

(By EARL C. REEVES)
LONDON.—(International News Service).—England's most remarkable Summer of half a century is drawing to a close. Two or three such summers and ice cream parlors would blossom on every corner; Englishmen would wear Palm Beach suits, instead of staring at them in wonder; refrigerators would appear in every home, and John Bull would take to drinking ice water like a civilized person, instead of making the obtaining of any drinking water at all a problem that would baffle a Sherlock Holmes.

For England has a comfortably hot summer. England has suffered Americans in England have revelled in the sunlight, lived in comfort and chortled at the discomfort of their English friends.

For years immemorial the Englishman has pulled his leg of his American friend for freezing in England's summer time. This year tables have been turned. The Yank has twittered John Bull for twittering in what has really been—excepting for a few days—really comfortable warm weather.

The newspapers have given John some solace. Hardy travellers who have ventured into America's heat belt, in the vicinity of Forty-second street and Broadway, wrote back almost daily to the press, giving melting accounts of a much hotter land.

ACTUALLY REMOVED COATS
The heat has had its recompense for the Englishman. He is an outdoor animal, as far as his weather will permit. He has never before had so much perfectly usable outdoors. For months not a drop of rain fell. Never so much tennis and cricket and golf played. Never was the Thames—from the point of view of amusement the most "used" river in the world—so constantly encumbered with pleasure craft.

The Americanizing of the island continued. Folks who hadn't the idea how ice cream was made, who hardly knew whether it was made from milk or water, bought tins. Then followed diplomatic advances to the "fishmonger." The fishmonger became a man of importance to be smiled upon. Folks wanted ice. Whether they had freezers—"ice machines," they call 'em—or not, English people actually were waiting for ice. You have to live in England to understand the marvel of it.

There supervised, of course, an ice famine. Something always supervenes in England at the time one wants something the most.

Furthermore, the English, who have no trout porches or back ovens, for that matter, begin to talk of different kinds of houses—American style, specially designed for the hot months.

CROPS SUFFER
Englishmen actually took off their coats! Sometimes even in their offices. Nothing short of a miracle, this.

The reverse side of the medal was the crops and the gardens. Crops suffered badly, of course. This meant money and concern to the farmers. But the state of the gardens meant something to everybody. For, when it wasn't raining—between the wars, as it were—England lives in its back garden, which a properly speaking, its front garden, for the houses face backward, dining room and perhaps "smoke-run" in front, but drawing room facing the garden.

London, a city of greenery and blossoms, became seared and brown. There was, of course, a water famine. In many parts the water pipes yielded to the turn of the tap only during a certain part of the day, while everywhere it was against the rules of the water companies to use a hose.

EUROPE IS SEETHING WITH HATES

ONLY A LITTLE FUEL IS NEEDED TO MAKE POT BOIL OVER

THE Lima News today received the following dispatch from a famous international traveler and student of affairs who has just returned from London after an extensive tour of Europe, on which he was the guest of many high statesmen in the various countries. The identity must be kept secret, his observations are of particular interest at this time in view of the coming Parliament Conference.

(By A FAMOUS INTERNATIONAL TRAVELER)

LONDON. — "The Blue Danube seems to me to be an even bluer proposition than Strauss, the waltz king, ever made and the best name for the border states seems to me to be the 'United Hates' of Europe."

This pat observation was made to me by Frank Vanderlip, the American financier, who, like myself, was making a first-hand study of conditions in Europe. But "the United Hates of Europe" are not confined to the Danube region alone.

All Europe is a seething caldron. Adding of a little fuel to the fire would make it boil over at one of several points.

FRANCE

N Paris I had a long talk with Ambassador Herrick. France seems to be coming back, at least superficially, but the increasing hatred of the Germans is manifest everywhere.

I believe the French realize that the Germans are making more rapid progress in reconstruction industrial and economically than is France itself.

When you see the devastation wrought about by the war in France and Belgium and compare it with the insignificant damage done to Germany, you are actually startled by the comparison.

GERMANY

SHOULD say that Germany today must be recognized as the most successful country in Europe. A number of unemployed in Germany today is less than 300,000, and being reduced every week.

The fact that the country is in debt and a large part of her industrial output mortgaged for years to her war, does not obscure signs of prosperity that you see everywhere. Germany during the summer has had a great harvest, she has escaped the ravages of droughts which affected almost every other country in Europe.

The Germans have not forgotten war, but most of them realize they have been licked.

talked to all sorts of plain people, police, drug clerks, railway station porters, and so forth—and in every case, even when they were Socialists and bitter against the war, I found that they were training for another go at France.

BAVARIA

GERMANY, however, is now suffering from her enemies within as well as her enemies without. Bavaria, the state of Germany, is virtually a kingdom with a king, and the people who live in Bavaria would much prefer a king to a president or a republic.

The outcome of the scrap between Prussia and Bavaria will determine to a certain extent how rapidly Germany will develop. The old dent of the republic. "I read carefully what President Harding says publicly and I profit by it," President Masaryk told me. "I am his admirer. I know Woodrow Wilson well. He was a great man, but like all human beings, made some mistakes."

AUSTRIA

Vienna I had a 30-minute conversation with President Michael Hainisch, a man of 60 with long whiskers.

He impressed me as being an important man, has been a professor of sociology, lives in a small house and appeared to be a real democrat.

President Hainisch said that Austria will come out of all her difficulties, tho she has more problems than any other country in Europe now.

"I have a strong hope that our people are now a democratic people, and that they no longer want a monarchy," he continued.

"Undoubtedly, the Austrian people would like to join Germany today, but could not under the treaty, hence we are trying to build up and reconstruct Austria alone."

Our relations with some of our neighboring countries are not cordial because they are holding territory given Austria, by the treaty, when they should deliver it.

"My message to America is that we believe in American justice and fair play, and we will overcome our difficulties if we have the sympathy and support of America and other great nations. I do not think America should interfere politically in Europe, but economically she should do so. What Austria hopes, and prays for is American justice and nothing more."

HUNGARY

HUNGARY is in a condition even worse than Austria because Hungary is divided in itself. I believe that the majority living in Hungary prefer a kingdom to a republic. In fact, Hungary today is the kingdom presided over by a regent.

The hatred for Rumania and Serbia is beyond expression. Rumania stole from Hungary millions of dollars worth of material after the war closed. No doubt about that, and Hungary is a seething caldron now because she is about to turn over to Austria two millions of her people under the terms of the Paris treaty. If I were to hazard a guess I should say that Hungary has more troubles ahead of her than any country I have visited.

I think the Magyars hate the Rumanians the most. As they are a proud and militant race, they are sure to make an effort to get back their lost lands as soon as they think the big powers are busy elsewhere.

ENGLAND

BEYOND doubt, the English people, much as they hate the Germans in a way, are anxious to do business with them, and the big capitalists of industry with whom I conversed on this subject do not hesitate to say so.

Wherever I traveled in Europe I noticed many German drummers going after European trade. I called this to the attention of a famous British statesman whom I met. He replied bluntly:

"Well, why should anybody object? We can't have it both ways. If we want reparations, we ought to be glad the Germans are at work and busily trying to earn money. If we don't want them to earn the money, we must give up the idea of reparations."

Your Figure Is the First Thing That People Notice

THOUSANDS of women have found that the Binner Corset gives them an appearance of greater slimness than any other corset they have ever worn. You will find them delightfully comfortable. The flesh is gently controlled where control is most needed.

It is wise to have a variety of Binner Corsets because the life of a corset is much longer when it is changed frequently. You need a corset for the morning, a light corset for calling, and one that is delicately made for evening wear.

The new styles show the popular low bust with straight hips. We shall be glad to show you these beautiful corsets and know that you will find in them a greater satisfaction than you have ever known before.

IS TOO YOUNG FOR BEAUS

Girl of 14 Should Heed Mother's Advice

Is Told to Go With Companions Nearer Her Own Age

Dear Miss Smart: All a girl 14 years old, I have all ways gone with girls much older than myself. In fact, the majority of them are about 18 years old. They all have their boy friends and I could have some too, if only my mother would permit it. The girls all want me to go out with them and I know we could have a good time.

N Fannie, I can't say that I think your mother is unreasonable. She is very, very sensible and when you become old enough to acquire correct understanding of what is right and what is wrong you will thank her for the attitude she has adopted. If you should go with the boys now, you would be well to use a very plebeian expression—"stale" when the time comes for you to accept the attentions of your boy acquaintances. You are still a little girl and you will have plenty and plenty of time to go out with the boys later on.

You have made a mistake in going with girls so much older than yourself. You should choose for your associates, girls who are nearer your age, or you will seem "old before your time." These other girls, of whom you speak, are old enough to accept invitations, while you are not. You should see that you would be much happier chumming with girls of your own age. Follow your mother's advice and guidance. She is thinking only of your good.

To "D. D.": Yes, I think it would be wise for you to write to someone in connection with your idea. I presume you have reference to Thomas A. Edison, not Edisson. A letter sent to East Orange, N. J., will reach him.

Dear Miss Smart: I am going to give a luncheon for a friend of mine from Lima and rather elaborate lunch. What suggestions could you make?

AN ENTERTAINER

Here is a menu, which should meet with the approval of the most exacting: The very best chicken soup, ripe olives, jellied tongue, early June peas, strawberries, cheese, hot rolls, pineapple with whipped cream and coffee.

Dear Miss Smart: I was engaged, but recently we broke our engagement. My ring is a very pretty one and I like it very much. I would like to keep it. Would this be proper?

Certainly not. The ring is the symbol of a bond which no longer exists between you and your former fiance. Return the ring immediately.

BIG MUSICAL PRODUCTION PLANNED FOR LIMA THEATRE-GOERS SOON

SCANDALS IS WHITE OFFERING

Stage Production Coming to Faurot Evening of Monday, October 3rd

Beauty Chorus, Gorgeous Scenery and Entrancing Music is Forecasted

MONDAY, October 3rd, for one day only, the Faurot will have for its attraction George White's own company and production in the spectacular and novel revue, "Scandals." Those who have been fortunate enough to see Mr. White's production have marvelled at his productivity in production and cast and in the coming offering they will find that he has kept to these high standards. To those who are seeking diversion and the better things in the theatre "Scandals" holds promise of being one of the best and most satisfactory entertainments of this or many other seasons.

In feminine array it boasts of a chorus of many beautiful girls, gorgeously and startlingly costumed. The play claims the services of more than twenty principal players whose names spell success in musical comedy circles. The most prominent are Helen Breen, Dolly King, Duke Rogers, Fred Cady, Donnie Breen, Harry Warrick, Helen Powers, Sidney Marion, Anita Valle, Wade Booth, Miriam Malloy, Charles Witzell, Fay Merrill, James Curran, the Six Jolly Jesters, and many other versatile people that keep the piece moving along at a pace that never allows the audience to grow lax for the action, fun and scenic effects are a continuous stimulant to jaded nerves and people who go to the theatre for novel, bright and satisfactory entertainment.

There are eighteen scenes in the play, stage pictures that are beautiful and fill the eye with pleasure. A host of bewitching and youthful girls, laughter and haunting melodies and dancing that borders on the sensational are the things that have made "Scandals" a success that is as unusual as it is satisfactorily entertaining.

The Faurot's Pictures

OF the twelve stellar players who appear in Cecil B. DeMille's latest which opens a week's engagement at the Faurot today, Paramount production, "The Affairs of Anatol," all but one came into prominence in a Cecil B. DeMille production.

The cast of "The Affairs of Anatol" reads like a who's who of screen stardom. Wallace Reid, Gloria Swanson, Elliott Dexter, Wanda Hawley, Monte Blue, Bebe Daniels, Theodore Roberts, Agnes Ayres, Theodore Kosloff, Julia Faye, Raymond Hatton and Polly Moran comprise the twelve principals. Polly Moran is the only member of this celebrated dozen who did not achieve prominence on the screen under Cecil B. DeMille's direction.

Many of this number had had ample previous screen experience. Some had even achieved a certain degree of stardom. Others were well and favorably known on the stage. But one and all date their first great screen success to their initial appearance with Cecil B. DeMille's productions.

Wallace Reid pioneered into the motion picture field in the day when the director wrote his own story, directed it, played the leading role—and made two pictures per week. At least that is what the versatile Wallace did when Hollywood was still a rural suburb of Los Angeles and the infant motion picture industry was regarded as no industry at all. But it was in "Carmen," "Maria

Wallace Reid, one of the twelve stars in "The Affairs of Anatol," at the Faurot theatre today.

Rosa" and "Joan the Woman"—all productions directed by Cecil B. DeMille—that Wallace Reid made his first great step toward stardom.

Gloria Swanson made her screen debut in slapstick comedy. At the end of several years in this field she achieved prominence in this work and was promoted to serious drama. Just at this point in her career her work attracted the attention of Cecil B. DeMille. The result was the leading feminine role in "Don't Change Your Husband," "For Better, For Worse," "Male and Female," "Why Change Your Wife?" "Something To Think About" and "The Affairs of Anatol" followed in the order named. All of these productions bear the name of Cecil B. DeMille's name. And today Gloria Swanson is starring in "The Great Moment," Elinor Glyn's original photoplay for Paramount.

Elliott Dexter, after a highly successful stage career, made his initial screen appearance in "The Heart of Nora Flynn" directed by Cecil B. DeMille.

Wanda Hawley ventured into pictures some little time before she attracted the attention of Cecil B. DeMille, but it was her work in "Old Wives for New" and more particularly "We Can't Have Everything" and "For Better, For Worse" that won her public approval and eventual stardom.

Bebe Daniels is another Realist star who graduated from comedy into serious drama via Cecil B. DeMille productions. Her work as the Babylonian woman in "Male and Female" was her initial appearance in this type of photoplay.

Monte Blue was a stunt man in the early days of the motion picture. Then followed numerous character interpretations and finally several leading roles opposite feminine stars. But it was his role of Jim Dirk in "Something To Think About" that attracted the favorable attention of the critics and the public.

Theodore Roberts is a veteran of stage veterans and today holds the same rank in point of versatile service on the screen, the rank of premier character actor among the younger generation of screen players.

Stellar talent is not confined to the cast. Jamie Macperson wrote the story suggested by Arthur Schnitzler's play of the same name, the famous French designer, Paul Iribe, designed the sets.

The Sigma's Pictures

YOU all know Bebe Daniels, or you think you do. But in her new picture, "The March Hare," which opens a four day engagement today at the Sigma theatre, this fascinating good little girl opens an entirely new bag of tricks. You never saw such wild pranks as those of Lisbeth Ann Palmer, the only child of a millionaire, who bet she could live for a whole week in New York on seventy-five cents. And she won her bet!

To obtain a respite from the excessive stimulation of Lisbeth Ann's society, her father sends her off to visit his sister-in-law in New York, accompanied by a spiteful cousin for a chaperone. Before they arrive at their destination, however, Lisbeth has made a bet that she can live on seventy-five cents a week and to prove her point, she immediately takes the role of a flower girl in a hotel where they are dining. After this, her escapades as a flower girl make a comedy full of original twists and much wholesome fun. Miss Daniels has never been given a more amusing role in a livelier play than that which has been accorded her in "The March Hare."

Harry Myers has the leading masculine role. Then there are Helen Jerome Eddy, Mayne Kelso, Herbert Sherwood and Melbourne McDowell in the supporting cast.

Of course, Bebe wears some stunning clothes throughout the picture and her usual vivacity is much in evidence. As a whole "The March Hare" is one of the cleverest and most entertaining little comedy-dramas ever presented. The Sigma's program for the latter part of the week features Tom Mix in "The Ridin' Romeo." In this production Tom has a new array of stunts which, combined with plenty of humor and action, make the picture a winner. Accompanying the feature is a new two-reel comedy and a late issue of the Fox News reel.

Mary Alden and Cullen Landis in "The Old Nest," at the Regent theatre, five days, beginning today.

The Majestic's Pictures

"HER First Elopement" which opens a two-day run today at the Majestic theatre, may be classed as a thoroughly pleasing comedy-drama, clean and sparkling. Wanda Hawley is the heroine. Alice Duer Miller wrote the story.

As Christian Elliott, Wanda has a role fitted to her vivacious and effective style of comedy. Poor Christian! She is immensely wealthy and apparently everyone in the world wants to marry her. Life threatens to be a bore until a rather determined young man kidnaps her under the belief that she is a "designing vampire" who is after his kid brother's fortune. An easy and simple plot, until the heroine tangles it up into a terrible complication of affairs.

An excellent cast is seen in support of Miss Hawley, including Jerome Patrick, Nell Craig, Lucien Littlefield, Herbert Standing and others.

The Rialto Pictures

"BABE" RUTH, than whom there is no more popular man in the country today, has proved himself as great an attraction on the screen as she is on the ball field. The "Colossus of the Swat," the man who hung up a record of fifty-four home runs during the past baseball season will be seen at the Rialto theatre today in his picture "Headin' Home" that scored such a tremendous success recently at Madison Square Garden, New York City.

In "Headin' Home," "Babe" Ruth is presented as a boy in a small town who is devoted to baseball and during one of the sand lot games is so unfortunate as to send one of his drives thru the window of a church. For this he is actually driven out of the town and at a time when a "city chap" is beginning to look with favor on "Babe's" sweetheart.

However, he takes with him the sneer of the same city chap who predicts that he will make a name for himself in baseball if he sticks to the "peanut selling" game. It so happens that "Babe" does make good and many of the scenes of the big production show the famous Home Run King in action on the diamond, scenes that have proved as interesting and entertaining to the ladies as they have to the men.

STUDD CLUB IS WIELDED

Chief Justice Cracks Number of Kokos Unmercifully.

PEN PROBE PROVES FLIVVER

Pence Anti-Glare Law Is Attacked From All Sides.

THE LIMA NEWS BUREAU
Columbus, September 25

COLUMBUS — (Special) — Some-what after the manner of a club already shaped out and lying ready for use is the minority opinion of Chief Justice C. T. Marshall, rendered this week on the emergency clause of the reorganization ripper act, which has been in effect nearly three months now and under which expenses of the state government have shot upward by leaps and bounds. The jurist, Marshall, C. J., as the Ohio State Reports will have it, certainly whittled it down to a nice hand hold and with plenty of sharp points to do execution on all and several. It is lying there now all ready for some one to seize and wield. Now the question arises as to who to seize it, and what is to be done with it. That's the big problem of this thing of the violation of the Constitution of Ohio has stirred men up as this observer has had impressed upon him for these many months. In writing at this time reopening the whole subject, the Chief Justice made himself still more unpopular in some places, notably the Ohio Supreme court room consultation chambers and in the northwest corner of Ohio's historic Capitol, the same being occupied by Governor Harry L. Davis. Nor did he increase his standing with some of the members of the General Assembly who voted, as he put it, to "rob the sacred Constitution of Ohio of one of its important and essential elements, the referendum."

Counting four judges of the Supreme court, one Governor, 139 members of the General Assembly and some odd hundred of office holders in the Davis administration, there are probably a thousand persons who were vexed at the "inclusion" conduct of the Chief Justice recalling things they longed to forget and fashioning the club to be brought down over the head of someone. Against this array of persons displeased and disgruntled can be aligned the millions and that is not very extravagant, well satisfied that some one was on hand to speak their views. Among lawyers, who have always scoffed at the decision as a piece of what the Chief Justice called "judicial, executive and legislative legerdemain," the shock of the Chief arose and his opinion has been hailed as a landmark in judicial history. Even the opposition concedes that his views will become the settled court construction and even now the majority decision is regarded as never likely to be cited as a precedent. Judge Marshall is more frank, saying "the true principle will be restored."

Rightfully, it is pretty well conceded that two have a right to the weapon fashioned and shaped by the Chief Justice, one a man and the other a party. The man is Senator J. P. Burke of Elyria, who brought the suit to have the emergency clause set aside while the other is a party, the Democratic party, which followed with its own suit and on which the judgment was rendered. The court tried to freeze out Senator Burke and if its conclusions be accepted it is the party of the roster that can now make his name dating back to the days of his rebirth in old Andy Jackson's time. It is not generally known, but the court records are evidence that the Senator's suit was ignored and the original decision was credited to the suit of W. W. Durbin, the Democratic state chairman. Whether a Republican who questions party decisions loses his standing in the courts or for what reason the particular step was taken, is something that the law students beginning their work at Ohio State university may well ponder upon. Its solution may lead them to reverence the law as applied in Ohio when partisan features are at stake and when a situation is to be saved in court.

Conceding the possessive title by discovery to the Laramie Senator, there remains the question whether he will be strong enough to keep the weapon which fate has given into his hands. Now that public sentiment has been set on the referendum matter, it would not be surprising if the Senator would have to fight to keep what is his. There may be many who will take a flying leap to seize it and to show that they, too, are friends of the dear referendum. Others have had that experience, wherefore it behooves the Senator to get busy and call the roll right now. Among others he might call out the name of Editor Charles Landon Knight of Akron who has been mentioned as being sympathetic enough to Senator Burke to satisfy the progressive element and also satisfactory to the other fellows. Then there is Roscoe C. McUlloch, his neighbor in Canton, who was left out in the counting last year. To the list may be added Secretary of State Harvey C. Smith who can furnish anyone interested with a testimonial that he believes in the referendum and opposed the ripper bill.

So, gentle readers, one may see with one eye shut what interesting times are ahead. They make the old-timers nervous for the sentiment that is being put into the mouths who will carry them is the party that cannot afford to have a cat and dog fight over such a thing as the referendum and a little matter like "trampling under foot the sacred constitution" again to revert to the classic opinion of the C. J. It may be true that the party cannot afford it, but the Senator can and there is where some of the difficulty lies. As they say around the grange table where men study art and finance for the purpose of separating the sucker from his hard-earned coin by means of popular game of stud and draw poker, it is "up to" Senator Burke.

Not being a poker player, he will not quite comprehend the term, but it means that it is his move. If he goes on pressing the matter, then the publican voters must give a decision between the two factions, the Governor's faction which wants the party, quite naturally to sustain him or the Senator's faction which believes that the Constitution is something more than a convenience for folks who have their own designs.

Lots of funny things may happen. For instance, if Burke's crowd comes out on top next year, one may have the pleasure of seeing and hearing some heavy-throated orator on the rostrum in front of a state convention of yelling, shouting and cheering delegates reading a declaration that the Grand Old Party of Lincoln, Grant, McKinley and Roosevelt is now and forever for the people's rights, ready to resist at all hazards any invasion thereof. Recalling that the party just as cheerfully endorsed what Judge Marshall calls "a great wrong committed," the delegation may gasp between cheers — but what's the difference. Again the decision of the C. J. may be the leading campaign document for the Democratic next year. That also would cause a few gasps, for the jurist is a hard-boiled Republican, even tho' elected on a non-partisan ballot. Still, they say they never saw a better campaign document than the one he evolved, tearing into shreds the claims of economy by showing that the General Assembly appropriated more money than any previous body in history and adding offices and jobs and spending with a lavish hand even while making a joke of the constitution in the name of economy. "Looks like the judge ought to be on the resolutions committee of the Democratic state convention next year," was the comment made by one of the old foxes after reading the document and stroking his chin.

It certainly would be most unkind to suggest a political motive in the action of Governor Davis in telling his unemployment conference here this week that there should be no "soup kitchens" and as low bread lines as possible. The soup kitchen has always been called a most economical means of feeding hungry men and women giving them a maximum amount of nourishment at a minimum of cost. The Governor failed to explain his hostility to the term, but of course it may be supposed that he had a reason and that reason probably was good enough and not necessarily because the "soup kitchens" have been called "hardship centers." Times will be just as hard if other means of providing for distress are employed. For example, if the food is carried to starving families in baskets, what is to prevent the unregenerate Democrats from calling them "Harding baskets?" They'll do it, like as not. Years ago there was talk of those Cleveland soup houses and the campaign speakers used to make themselves hoarse as they painted the terrors of those places. Starvation is starvation and will feel no difference if it goes under another name.

How the committee of State Senators kept their faces straight while they were writing that report on conditions in the Ohio Penitentiary will always be one of the wonders of Ohio. The committee was created because of factional and partisan "politics." It set out to "get" Warden P. E. Thomas because he was supposed to be a Democrat. The inquiry was launched in Republican state headquarters. It was begun with the advice of Governor Davis who had a factional supporter of his all ready to be named to the place. Then when he learned that some of his associates in Columbus would not stand for Thomas' dismissal, the Governor told the committee to desist. That's where partisan politics ended and factional politics began. The enemies of the Governor in the Senate proposed to dig up so much stuff on the Warden that the Governor would be embarrassed with the party or be compelled to fire him. Then they failed in doing that and now they find the evil in the prison is "politics." Like the fellow with the bolt who became excited about an epidemic of bolts, they imagined their own disease was that of the institution. It's all right, now as always, going on just the same as if there were no Senators, except that it has had a few as involuntary guests. If Warden Thomas did not laugh when he read the report, his sense of humor is gone and ought to be replaced, or his liver is wrong — one of the two.

When the American Legion gets hold of the "party," as they say out west, who invited Governor Harry L. Davis to speak in behalf of the soldiers' bonus in the approaching campaign, they will toss him up in a blanket or confine him in the guard house or inflict some equally drastic punishment. They are after him. Just now there is under suspicion a refund legions who has high political aspirations. The fellows at headquarters are not quite certain, but like the police, they have the suspects under surveillance. The managers of the campaign, the real managers were never more frightened on France's blood-stained fields than they were when the intelligence came that His Excellency was to speak for the bonus. They think the campaign can be carried all right, but they are not so confident that they want to take on any handicaps. That's the way they express it. In striving to keep partisan politics out of the organization the boys have to play a lot of politics among themselves. This will all come out at the Toledo convention next week.

From all parts of the state reports are flowing in that accidents to motorists have increased under the Pence law which requires installation of anti-glare devices. There is already litigation for its repeal if the courts hold it good. This for little effort has been made to enforce it, a month's grace being given because lenses were not available. As soon as the police nab someone who doesn't believe in the law a suit is likely to commence. In some cities of the state the police are insistent upon dimming lights notwithstanding the law. On the highways, the each man is a law to himself and no one knows whether the law has really been complied with or not. Moreover, if the lights are focused as required, it is another point that has not been thought of. The best thing discovered about the cute legislation of

SERUM WILL SAVE INFANT LIVES

Infantile Paralysis Cure Made Available by the State

Lives of thousands of Ohio children who are annually victims of infantile paralysis are to be saved thru a serum, a quantity of which has been obtained by the state board of health. Units for treating children attacked by the disease may be obtained free, Dr. J. B. Poling, city health commissioner states. The serum was discovered and developed by Dr. E. C. Rosenow, of the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn. It is reported to be a positive cure if used in time. Recently 150,000 units were obtained by the Ohio health authorities. So valuable is the discovery to medical science that it is believed the use of the serum will stamp out the malady. Dr. Poling emphasizes that the treatment is free and if necessary a physician will come to administer it. If used in the early stages of the disease, he states, it is purported to be a positive cure. last winter is that the Atwood second hand car bill is not bringing in more revenue because it makes purchasers take out new tags for the rest of the year. As a stopper of car thefts, it is adding some thousands to the cash box—and that's all.

FIRE PREVENTION CLUB PLANNED BY CHIEF MACK

Formation of a fire prevention club in Lima is advocated by Chief John Mack, of the fire department. Similar organizations exist in other cities, he declares. Springfield has a club of 500 members. Insurance and business men are active members and aid the department materially in ferreting out fire menaces and causing conditions to be brought to the attention of the department. No such organization has ever been at work here and the investigation of fire risks has largely been carried on by Chief Mack in person.

U. S. AGENTS' EYES ON KU KLUX

Data Gathered on Klan From All Sections

WASHINGTON.—Affairs of the Ku Klux Klan are being probed by thousands of federal agents and local police in an effort to determine whether the government shall stamp out the organization, Attorney General Daugherty declared Saturday night.

Practically every branch of the organization is under surveillance, Daugherty said, and every move of its members is under investigation. Agents of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice are sifting a mass of data relating to the activities of the Klan. Two classifications of this data are being made for the information of the attorney general. The first and that of greatest interest to federal authorities, relates to possible violation of the federal conspiracy statutes and the war laws still in effect, covering activities calculated to overthrow by force or violence the government of the United States and the operation of its laws.

The second is largely a matter for local and state officials. It covers the obtaining of money by fraud or under false pretenses. State and municipal authorities will be asked for aid and cooperation in this direction and they will in turn have the assistance of federal district attorneys and agents of the bureau of investigation.

A third phase of the inquiry to the possible use of the mails for illegal purposes. Postmaster General Hays has ordered a thorough investigation of this by postoffice inspectors. The attorney general Daugherty still has under consideration the advisability of summoning to Washington Imperial Wizard Simmons and other officials of the Klan to give such information as they are willing to impart, the government investigation is proceeding in rapid and orderly fashion.

BIG CONTRACT IS WON BY FROBASE

Lima Contractor to Pave Streets in Bellefontaine

P. A. Frobase, Lima contractor, was the successful bidder in a list of five firms which submitted prices on sewer work and paving of three streets in Bellefontaine. The contract for the work has been signed and calls for the expenditure of $40,000.

The three streets are to be paved with concrete and the sewers constructed of similar material. One of the stipulations to which all contractors bidding on the work were required to agree was that only local labor will be employed on the job. One object in letting the work late in the season was to provide employment for residents of the city. Work has started on the contract, according to Frobase. Machinery and equipment owned by the contractor has been moved from Lima to Bellefontaine.

The streets to be improved are Mad River, Gartfield-ave and Auburn-ave. Sewers will be constructed first and the pavement will be laid later.

The streets are to be completed and open for traffic by November 15. The five bids submitted were close, there being but a few hundred dollars difference between the highest and the lowest.

NO CLUE FOUND IN JEWEL THEFT

Police Without Lead in Mehaffey $2,000 Robbery

Investigation by the police Saturday of the Mehaffey jewel robbery at 132 N. Charles-st. Friday night, threw no light on the affair, it was stated by Chief O. J. Roush. Officer Rolla Glover, detailed on the case, learned that a man who was in the neighborhood inquiring where Mehaffey's house was located, was in no wise connected with the robbery. Residents of Charles-st. informed police that the man stopped at several homes and asked the number of Mehaffey's residence. Occupants of an adjoining house stated that they were at home all evening and were playing the piano. They heard nothing and did not learn of the robbery until Saturday morning. The police believe that any noise that might have been made in forcing an entrance was drowned out by the music. While a conservative estimate of the value of the stolen jewels is $2,000, George E. Mehaffey, owner, stated Saturday that he would not estimate the loss. The articles are invaluable, he stated.

SEEN IN PLANT RELEASE

Conclusions Drawn On Announcement of Kameneff

LONDON.—By N. F. A. Service—Bolshevism is in its death agonies. Russia returns to the capitalist system. It will accept democracy, tho' probably a democracy allowing some consideration to the tenets of communism.

This is how British statesmen and financiers interpret the announcement by M. Kameneff, head of the Moscow soviet and member of the Bolshevik cabinet, that the Russian soviet government will restore the rights of private capital thruout Russia.

All Russian industries except railways, textile, metallurgical and fuel sources will be handed back to capital, according to Kameneff's announcement.

TREMENDOUS EFFECTS London believes that the new soviet economic policy will have these tremendous effects:

ONE: Russia, by admitting the failure of the soviet economic policy, paralyzes the Red movement in other countries.

TWO: Russia may soon be eligible for recognition as a legitimate member of the family of nations.

THREE: Private capital will open up tremendous markets in Russia, particularly for American exports.

FOUR: The new export market in Russia will make it easier for Germany to raise indemnity money.

FIVE: The dismemberment conference will be powerfully affected by the new soviet policy. Russia may even be represented at the conference.

CAUSE OF CHANGE Famine, military necessity and collapse of Russian industry under Bolshevik management are back of the soviet's change of policy.

Kameneff's announcement that the soviet is ready to discuss indemnity with foreigners whose property in Russia has been confiscated, raises the possibility that the soviet may be on the verge of honoring the international debts incurred by the czar's government.

This would placate France and possibly end France's determination to make Poland an eastern military base.

Dictatorship of the proletariat was set up by the Bolsheviks in 1917. Months ago, Lenin in an interview, admitted that the soviet was compelled to make certain concessions to capital. This forecast the events that have followed.

KAMENEFF A POWER Kameneff now stands forth, in the soviet government, abreast with Trotsky and Lenin. He comes from an old Russian military family. Looks "intellectual" of the radical. In the early days of the war he was an ordinary regimental commander. He became chief of staff of the Third Army, before the Russian collapse.

Kameneff is head of the Moscow soviet and a member of the Bolshevik cabinet. He went to London as head of the Russian trade delegation to negotiate with Lloyd George for trade between England and Russia. He is a brother-in-law of Trotsky.

Two Hundred Strong Will Visit Cleveland, October 11-13

Members of Shawnee Commandery No. 14, Knights Templar, will attend the 79th annual conclave of the Knights Templar of Ohio, at Cleveland, October 11 to 13, George W. Eckert, commander, stated Saturday.

Commandery members will leave Lima over the Western Ohio, aboard special cars, at 7 a. m. on October 11 and will partake of a fish lunch at Sandusky, enroute to Cleveland. Completing the trip to the Forest City in the afternoon, the Lima visitors will arrive in time for the reception to be given by the various Commanderies in the evening.

Headquarters for the Lima Sir Knights will be at the Statler Hotel, where rooms have been engaged for 200 Sir Knights and their wives. The K. of P. band of Cleveland has been engaged to furnish music for the Shawnee Commandery in the parade to be held on Wednesday, October 12.

The Masonic York Rite order of Knights Templar dates back 803 years to the days of the Crusades. The oldest Commandery in Ohio is at Mt. Vernon, No. 1, founded in Washington in 1818. There are now 73 Commanderies in the major cities of Ohio, with a membership of 30,000.

Cleveland Masons has just completed a new $2,500,000 Temple, where the convales will be held. More than 10,000 white plumed Templars are expected to participate in the spectacular pageant in Euclid-ave, with a band of 1,000 playing the Templars' marching hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers."

FEDERAL AID FOR CITIZEN INJURED

Restraining Is Provided Under Special Law Enacted

Miss Marie Miller, supervisor of the Lima health center; Mrs. J. B. Poling, Mrs. J. C. McDonald and other Red Cross and ex-service nurses of this district, including Delphos, Wapakoneta, Kenton and other nearby cities and towns, and many graduate nurses who are members of District No. 18, in the Ohio State Graduate Nurses' association, will attend the Red Cross National convention, to be held in Columbus, at the state exposition grounds, October 4 to 8.

All local Red Cross Nursing Service committees are urged to recruit nurses for the federal hospitals, Mrs. J. B. Poling said Saturday. Information may be had from the Red Cross health center, phone Main 5775.

The nurses' organization is interested in a new law, signed by President Harding, which provides for the restraining of persons disabled in industry. It applies to persons who by reason of physical defect or infirmity, whether congenital or acquired by accident, injury or disease or who may be expected to be totally or partially incapacitated for remunerative occupation.

Miss Marie Miller, health supervisor, will afford full information on this subject to anyone interested.

BORAH SEES STEP TOWARD LEAGUE

Senator Resumes His Attack on Peace Treaty

Fight Against Reparations Commission Planned

(By L. C. MARTIN)

WASHINGTON — President Harding will ask congress to approve American membership on the reparations commission as soon as the peace treaties with the central powers have been ratified by the senate. That it will cause a new "treaty" rivalry in many respects the long battle over the Versailles treaty, was clearly indicated Saturday in the fight against the reparations commission.

STEP TOWARD LEAGUE Senator Borah, getting under way his opposition to ratifying the present treaty, declared in a speech to the senate that the only thing the treaty accomplished is to give the United States the right to sit on the reparations commission and charged despite contrary statements of Senator Lodge that this is a step towards getting the United States into the league of nations.

"Whoever seeks to avoid the league by joining the reparations commission is due for a sad awakening," said Borah.

U. S. LEFT FREE Senator Lodge in placing the treaty before the senate, said it left this government free to do as it pleased about everything involving American rights. Lodge clearly indicated, however, that the administration believed that in order to safeguard American rights, this government must become a member of the reparations commission.

Lodge assured the senate that ratification of the treaty would cause an immediate and very great reduction in the American army of occupation in Germany.

When the administration asks authority to join the reparations commission, congress will be told that the United States cannot settle financial questions between Germany and this nation unless we become members of the reparations commission. This is because the commission is Germany's master. Germany is not permitted to pay out a dollar of foreign indebtedness except under the approval of the commission, nor to negotiate independently for settlement of obligations.

LIMA VETERANS IN ENCAMPMENT

Leave Monday For G. A. R. Meeting in Indianapolis

Members of Mart Armstrong Post No. 202, G. A. R., in goodly numbers, will go in style, Monday, to the National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, at Indianapolis. W. D. Hoffman, Post Senior Vice Department Commander of Ohio, and Commander of the local post announced Saturday.

Commander Heffner will be accompanied by the following named comrades, leaving Lima at 13 m. Monday, aboard a special car on the E. & O. L. J. Shockey, H. H. Herman, G. E. Copeland, J. W. Allen, A. J. Osman, W. Carter, T. Spencer, M. C. Taylor, H. W. Marshall, W. A. Lane, G. W. Randall, H. H. Swift, W. A. Greene, Daniel Harpster, W. S. Howard.

Delegates from Columbus Grove, Cairo, Elida, Ada and Waynesfield will accompany the Lima party.

"Owing to the fact that survivors of the civil war are dying at the rate of about 100 a day and that the average age of the veterans is about 80 years, it is likely," W. D. Hoffman, commander of Lima Post said Saturday, "that not more than one more annul encampment of the G. A. R. will be held."

There are less than 100,000 survivors of the civil war, with a total of nearly 3,000,000 enlistments and re-enlistments. Fifty-six years have passed since the war and time has taken its toll for death.

REGULAR JAIL BIRD CAPE TOWN.—For the last nine times, Alfred Gardner got 30 days to jail for being drunk. When arrested for the tenth time today, the judge gave him three months.

MOVIE THEATRES HAVE GREAT FEAST IN STORE FOR FILMDON FANS

FEATURES NOTED IN SCHEDULE

Unusual Assembly of Stars in "The Affairs of Anatol," a Schnitzler Play

All Screen Houses Have Exceptional Offerings for Presentation During Week

(By ESTHER WAGNER)
EXCEPTIONALLY meritorious is the program of film features to be seen at local theatres this week. In fact, two of the large productions of the year are scheduled for presentation during the next seven days.

"The Affairs of Anatol" the much heralded Cecil B. DeMille picture, is to be featured during the entire week at the Faurer Opera House. The most wonderful cast ever assembled in one picture is to be seen in this gorgeous production. There's Wally Reid, Gloria Swanson, Bebe Daniels, Agnes Ayres, Elliott Dexter, Wanda Hawley, and many others of equal fame. "The Affairs of Anatol" has been screened amid such scenes of elegance and beauty as are seldom seen in any production.

Rupert Hughes' great drama of mother love, "The Old Nest" opens a five day run today at the Regent theatre. "The Old Nest" is the story of a typical American family, depicting the sunny as well as the tragic side of family life. Mary Alden, in the role of the mother, is said to give to the screen the most marvelous interpretation ever given. Others in the cast include Molly Malone, Cullen Landis, Helen Chadwick and Johnny Jones.

The Sigma's bill of fare for the week opens with the sprightly Miss Bebe Daniels in "The March Hare," by Elmer Harris. This is an unusually entertaining story with Miss Daniels in her favorite tom-boy role. Harry Myers plays opposite. Tom Mix, in "The Ridin' Romeo" is scheduled to appear at the Sigma on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. This popular star, in a splendid story, is sure to make an hour pass pleasantly.

The Lyric's weekly program is above the average, opening today with Bryant Washburn in "The Road to London." Mr. Washburn, after an absence from the screen, comes back delightfully in this entertaining comedy drama. In addition, the well known Manakus Royal Hawaiians appear on the bill in a musical program par excellence.

The Majestic's Sunday program features "Her First Elopement" with Ganda Hawley and Jerome Patrick.

Bebe Daniels in "The March Hare" at the Sigma theatre today.

while "Headin' Home" with Bebe Ruth, is the offering at the Rialto, today and until Thursday.

The Regent's Pictures

In "The Old Nest," the Goldwyn Company has given the theatre-going public something it has wanted for ages. It's a Rupert Hughes story, and is a touching and realistic treatment of the most beautiful and sacred of all themes—a mother's love for her children.

The background upon which this wonderful drama unfolds is the simple, old fashioned home of a typical American family. The incidents that transpire in this atmosphere; the rearing of the brood from babyhood to manhood; the flight from the old nest, and the sudden happy homecoming are so unerringly true to life that one is constantly reminded of memories of home life long since forgotten.

The home of Dr. Horace Anthon is the average American home. Mrs. Anthon is a quiet, hardworking little mother whose life is wrapped up in the welfare of her six children. But gradually the children leave the old nest; one is killed, one grows up an idler and a weakling; one daughter marries, a son goes to Paris to study; the baby grows to young womanhood and elopes. Mother is left all alone in the old nest. Father goes on with the humdrum existence of a country doctor, but mother spends all of her time in the old home, longing for her children and living over all the old memories. Her birthdays come and go unremembered. They are so busy, these children of hers, that they haven't time to think of home and their mother. The picture closes with a beautiful message to sons and daughters that will not soon be forgotten.

In "The Old Nest" there is no melodrama, no tragedy, no sentimentality. It is merely—Life. All of the people in the story are alive, inexpressibly human and true to life.

Mary Alden, in the other role, does the most remarkable work of her interesting career. Others in the cast are Molly Malone, Helen Chadwick, Glen Landis and Louise Lovely.

FOR anyone who likes to watch a hero of the West who knows how to be a superb horseman and a daring fighter, as well as a perfect lover and a laugh-provoking comedian, Andy of the Flying U. will furnish plenty of entertainment.

Franklyn Farnum is convincingly sincere in his work as well as handsome. His adventures as Andy, foreman of a large western ranch, provide countless opportunities for him and for the men and women of the east to display their ability in emotional scenes and in strenuous athletic work.

Altho Andy does not start his love making until about the middle of the picture, he surely makes up for lost time and passes all the rest in the race for the hand of the beautiful Genevieve Berie, who plays the leading feminine role in "The Galloping Devil," to be shown at Royal Theatre today and tomorrow.

The Lyric's Pictures

PATRONS of the cinema need no introduction to Bryant Washburn, for he has established himself among fans as one of the most virile, handsome and enterprising of the younger screen celebrities. In his newest picture "The Road to London" which is appearing today at the Lyric, his wonderful personality is transferred to the screen at one hundred per cent.

Miss Joan Morgan, a noted English beauty, is leading lady for Mr. Washburn. The story is full of action, and intimately concerns one Rex Rowland, an American in London on business. Finding a pretty girl in a taxi, held up by the traffic, he reads an S. O. S. call in her beautiful eyes and answers by calling a taxi and following. She is Lady Emily, and she is being forced by her guardian to marry her cousin, the Viscount.

Rex kidnaps the Lady Emily in a borrowed car and as they are pursued thru busy streets, beautiful suburbs and into the country, many novel adventures befall them. It is during the course of these adventures that the real ability of Washburn is brought to the fore, and the usual ending to the story sees him happy in the possession of the one girl in the world.

Not a single stage set was used in filming "The Road to London." It is an out door story staged in London—Piccadilly Circus, Charing Cross, Trafalgar Square, Westminster Abbey, Buckingham Palace and other noted locations being the background for many of the most exciting scenes.

There's a certain fascination about adventure that even the most sedate picture-goer relishes and in "The Road to London" you are assured plenty.

In addition to the feature film, a musical program by the well-known Manakus Royal Hawaiians, is scheduled today at the Lyric. The company is one of the most competent musical organizations on tour today, and one of their features, a Hula Hula Dance, is said to be decidedly pretty.

DEATH AS JUDGE AND JURY

Grim Reaper Forestalls Law in Joe Holland Case

ALLEGED BURGLAR DIES

Grand Jury Probe to Start in Many Cases Monday

Death was the judge and jury in one of the cases—that of Joe Holland—which was to be investigated by the Allen-co grand jury, which will convene for the September term of court, Monday morning.

Holland was tinkering with the cash box in the telephone booth at the Ohio Electric station, when the mechanical arrangement rang an alarm in central office. They notified police, who claim to have found Holland engaged in robbing the box. It is said to have contained $27, which it is charged he secured.

Holland was bound over to await action by the grand jury. He was attacked by illness at the county jail and it was found was afflicted with appendicitis and pneumonia. He was removed to the City hospital, where death occurred a few days later. Prosecuting Attorney E. T. Lippincott marked the case from the docket Saturday.

Other cases to be investigated by the grand jury include the following: Perry Roeder, for assault and battery; Henry Keller for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated; Paul Gardner, for abandonment of his wife; A. L. B. Burkholder, assault with intent to kill; C. M. Williams, assault upon George H. Pond and threatening to strike and wound; George Caspol, alias Capple, stealing a sorrel mare belonging to Ben Smith; Roy Coon, stealing automobile; Emmett Hosier, assault with intent to rape Evelyn Kurtz; H. J. Shaffer, assault with intent to rape Fanny Miller; Frank Sly, attack, with consent, upon Fay Conkle; Ted Howard Armstrong, assault and battery upon Oliver Mull; Ella Lindsey, assault and battery upon Myrtle Lindsey; Carl Hoon, operating a motor vehicle without owner's consent; Samuel Archer, theft of an automobile; John Roberts, assault with intent to rape Pauline Monroe; William Clay, shooting with intent to kill; Sam Minto, burglary and larceny at home of Mary Clay and stealing therefrom a clock valued at $30; Joe Taylor, burglary and larceny; breaking into the Calvin Smith home; Pete Good, alias A. M. Good, burglary of soft drink parlors and taking $60 in money therefrom; Ernest O. Brown, same charge as against Good; Ernest O. Brown, theft from a hardware store of $18 in property; Lois English, malicious slander upon Mabel Penton; Mamie Dods, stealing a suit; John Doe, whose real name is Albert Rowley, stealing a horse and buggy from the Provo Hivery; John Houston, carrying concealed weapons and John Houston for burglary and larceny, taking liquor from a vault at the Ohio Steel Foundry; James K. Emmitt, forgery, and uttering a forged check; Gerald Steinmetz, non-support of child.

SEVERAL CASES COMING UP

Besides the above, the grand jury will investigate a number of secret cases, which will be brought to its attention. Most of these are charges of non-support of children and aged parents.

VAPO STOVE PLANT TO REMAIN HERE

Factory Building Leased—Kauffman Announces Plans

Rejecting offers from other towns for the location of the Vapo Stove company plant, officers of the new concern during the past week secured a lease on the building being vacated by the Lima Sheet Metal Products company on E. Wayne-st., as the location of the manufactory. The sheet metal company is moving to its new factory building.

J. T. Kaufman, manager of the Vapo Stove company, stated Saturday that many towns were bidding for the plant, particularly Delphos, where the buildings formerly occupied by the defunct Glamorgan Tire & Rubber company were held up as a tempting lure. After considering all phases of the situation,

Fred J. Ash, formerly connected with the A. & B. Stove company of Battle Creek, Mich., will arrive during the coming week to take over the active management of the Vapo Stove company interests.

The taking of this lease and the assurance that the stove company is to remain in Lima is considered one of the important industrial transactions of the past week. The company is several thousand stoves behind in its orders. It is expected that 200 men will be employed when the factory is placed in operation.

BEST WAY TO AVOID AUTO ACCIDENTS

Confidence in Your Own Driving Ability Impresses Others.

The two best ways to avoid automobile accidents are to be courteous on the road and confident in your driving ability.

This formula for road-safety comes from Restus B. Parrish, motorcycle pathfinder of the Travel and Transport Bureau of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. He is well qualified to speak on the subject as he has traveled 100,000 miles during the past six years and has never had a serious accident.

"Courtesy and confidence should be big words in every motorist's vocabulary," says Parrish. "Most of the tail-end, head-on and 'ditched' accidents would be avoided if every motorist would practice common road courtesy. Respect the other fellow. He's entitled to the same consideration you expect from him. "One of the most discourteous actions I have experienced is negligence in applying dim headlights when passing another vehicle at night. Hundreds of unnecessary accidents are caused by glaring headlights beating down on drivers. Always use the motorist must use the other being 'swiped' into a ditch, or taking his eyes off the road, or holding his portion of the road. Proper use of dimmers will save lives and dollars. "The best car drivers today are those who impress other drivers that they know what they are doing," according to Parrish. "Confidence in your own driving ability will dispel doubt on the other fellow's part. The other hand, if you appear lost and confused, your chances of being hit or smashed into another are multiplied."

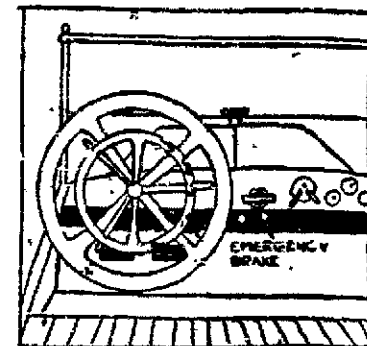

ISCH HAS BATTERY IGNITION FOR FORDS

Those following the announcement that the makers of the Bosch Ignition Systems for automobiles engines comes the news that a new firm is now manufacturing a remarkably efficient battery for Ford. Leo Beckman, of the Beckman Co., the official Bosch Service Station in this city, described the new outfit yesterday, explaining it is a simple but remarkably efficient system that has been literally "tailored" to the Ford engine. In the case of cord tires, each thread is embedded in the rubber compound and the internal friction is reduced to a minimum. A brief summary of the advantages derived from the use of cord tires would include easier riding, due to greater resiliency; saving of gasoline and oil; saving of machinery, and more miles per dollar.

Tale is found in great quantities in Canada.

AUTO WITHOUT LEVERS

One of the latest model automobiles has no brakes or control lever. Instead, the gear shifting is done

FACTS ABOUT FABRIC IN YOUR AUTO TIRES

Cotton fabric is the foundation upon which an automobile tire is built. It is used to give stability and strength. There are two well-known classes of tires—the square-woven fabric and the cord tire.

In the square-woven fabric tire the threads in each ply run in both directions, alternating over and under as in a piece of ordinary cloth. In the cord tire, the threads or cords in each ply run parallel with the exception of a few small cross threads, used simply to hold the cords together while they are being impregnated with the rubber compound.

The life of a tire would be greatly increased if internal friction could be eliminated. The internal friction caused by intermittent distortion of the tire in use is the result of the friction of the threads upon each other and the strains and stresses set up in the rubber compound. Naturally the fabric which gives the least room for internal friction will give the longest life of the tire.

Since square-woven fabrics cannot be thoroughly impregnated with rubber at the points where the threads cross flexing at these points will cause a sawing action and the generating of internal heat. It has been demonstrated very clearly by experiment, according to the United States Tire Company, that, when the temperature resulting from internal heat reaches 230 degrees, vulcanized rubber ceases to function as an adhesive compound, crumbles into minute particles which fail to resume their original condition, causing the compound to lose its function in the tire. This causes separation, weakness, and finally a blow-out. It may be interesting to know that 265 degrees is not an uncommon temperature reached in a tire when driven at a high rate of speed over the road; this is particularly true of large truck tires.

In the case of cord tires, each thread is embedded in the rubber compound and the internal friction is reduced to a minimum. A brief summary of the advantages derived from the use of cord tires would include easier riding, due to greater resiliency; saving of gasoline and oil; saving of machinery, and more miles per dollar.

Change Oil To Insure Service

Regular attention to the oil in your car's crank case will insure good service so far as the engine is concerned.

A new car, or one recently overhauled, should get a new change of oil after its first 400 miles. Thereafter the oil may be renewed at every 1000-mile mark.

If there is sediment in the crank case, the case should be flushed with kerosene. After draining the kerosene, put in a pint of cylinder oil to clean out all kerosene thoroughly. The oil screen should be taken out and cleaned of all foreign matter. This is best done by shaking it in a pail of gasoline.

The crank case may also be cleaned inside and out at this time.

Kerosene applied with a stiff bristle brush is the best cleaner. In replacing the oil pan be sure that the gasket is not broken. A new one ought to be put in for safety, shelling one side and applying graphite and oil to the other.

Tighten the nuts of the crank case evenly so as not to leave any air space. All joints to oil piping should also be tight, to prevent oil leakage.

Before starting the engine, it will be necessary to prime the oil pump.

Remove the small plug and pour in about a pint of oil.

AUTOMOBILE HEAD IS ALSO GREAT KIWANIAN

D. L. Morgan, of New Haven, Conn., who has been temporarily in charge of the national headquarters of the American Automobile Association since the death of A. G. Batchelder a few months ago, was unanimously elected to the position of executive chairman at a special meeting of the executive committee held in New York City.

While Mr. Morgan has always been an enthusiastic participant in motor racing affairs, and is a member of numerous social, fraternal and business organizations and associations, he is, first of all, a soul and heart deep, a Kiwanian. He believes thoroughly in all the Kiwanis organization stands for and was active in the affairs of the Kiwanis clubs at Scranton and New Haven while living in those cities.

Loose battery terminals may be reinforced and tightened by wrapping a strip of tinfoil around the point that is inserted in the post. That will take up the extra play and insure good contact.

Chemists say alcohol can be extracted from seaweed.

AUTO NOTES

Don't stop suddenly.

Oil steering knuckle plus daily. Shake the car to test for squeaks. There are only 200 automobiles in the whole state of Persia.

Nevada has the least number of automobiles of all states. New Jersey has 116 automobiles to every 100 farms.

If the spark plug leaks, a new gasket may remedy it.

A loose nut may cause the breakage of an important part.

Too much speed means too much wear and tear.

Nine cars and ten models are in the less than $1000 class.

Tighten bolts often to avoid squeaks and rattles.

Remove discoloration on spark plug porcelain with a knife.

Steering gear joints should be kept well packed with half grease and half graphite.

Des Moines, Ia., is the first city to become completely motorized, even to trolley lines.

The term "roadster" was first applied to vehicles that worked their way by means of the tide.

Three hundred different kinds of motor vehicles were being built in 1895.

There are nearly one million commercial vehicles in the United States.

Since 1899 more than 12,000,000 motor vehicles have been manufactured.

The total value of the passenger cars produced in 1920 was $1,509,170,963.

Missing, especially at low speed often is due to an air leak into the manifold.

Cars on a basis of 37 per cent of last year's production were produced during April, May and June. Carbon accumulates underneath the piston and in ring slots, besides the open places.

A leak at a petcock may be stopped by applying a paste of shellac and graphite.

The twelve largest cities in the United States have only 9 per cent of all motor cars in the country. Seven out of every 100 farmers in Pennsylvania bought automobiles in 1920.

One-third of the cars in the next Grand Prix must be French, or the race may be called off.

The famous British Rolls-Royce firm is planning the production of a 20-horse-power, six-cylinder car. Between 1500 and 2000 passenger automobiles are now operating in Tientsin, China.

Strangers to London are piloted thru the city by guides provided by the Automobile Association. Always keep spark advanced just before the point where it produces a knock.

The world's rubber consumption this year is expected to be about 250,000 tons.

Many cars are laid to ride because lubrication of the springs is neglected.

To every 116 farms of more than 100 acres in New Mexico, there is one motor truck.

A slipping clutch is a constant waste of power and fuel, and a strain on the engine.

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce is conducting safety first campaigns in the schools of the country.

A senate bill is pending applying a $5000 fine and five years in jail for theft of an automobile transported from state to state.

Insurance authorities say only between one-fourth and one-third of the automobiles in the country are protected.

More than 500 motor cars, valued at $2,500,000, were stolen in Manhattan and the Bronx, New York, in the last six months.

Chicago police charge 80 per cent of the automobiles stolen in that city are taken with the knowledge and consent of the owners.

A federal bill is planned by which theft of an automobile would be punishable by a $5000 fine and imprisonment for five years.

That screeching noise when the car is stopping is very likely due to dirt between the brake drums and the bands.

CADILLAC OUTPUT RISES TO NORMAL

The Cadillac Motor Car Company has resumed a production schedule as great as that of last year. It was announced at a convention at the factory from all parts of the country recently to view the new Type 61 Cadillac models.

WAY TO TEST PLUGS

A good way of locating a missing spark plug is to open the relief cocks one at a time. The cylinder without flame, out of which issues a hiss, but no sharp report, is the one at fault.

WHY SOME TIRE SIDE WALLS BREAK DOWN

"I've spent several years in the business," says Mr. Ebling, local Dayton Tire dealer, "and in that time I've learned a lot about what happens to tires."

"One thing I've noticed is this—that the side walls of many tires go to pieces a long time before they should. Frequently they give out, leading the life of the tire while the tread is still good. In some cases of course it's due to tears or cuts made by ruts or curb stones. But too often the trouble is due to plain deterioration of the side wall substance, a 'cracking' or 'checking' that exposes the cord or fabric structure to the action of water, mud and sand."

"Now one reason why I'm so confident of the good service in Dayton Tires is that the sidewalls are made of a costly tread rubber compound."

"The Dayton sidewall will run for many thousands of miles without showing signs of checking and it will stand a lot of wear and tear. I don't want to invite users of Dayton Tires to scrape their throats along the curb at every chance, to look for deep ruts or to run in the car tracks but when such punishment is unavoidable, I'll back Dayton to stand it."

A British company claims that chalk can be used as a coal substitute.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

FARMERS TO BUY MANY AUTOS NOW

Is the farmer going to buy this fall? As one writer puts it, "many a manufacturer and merchant would sleep better tonight if he knew the answer."

A leading farm journal determined to find out whether the American farmer will be in the market for purchases and if so, what will he buy? The research department of this farm publication adopted a novel plan to get the right answer. A man named Smith in the research department calculated that he sent his questions to all the Smiths on the publication's lists he would get a real line on the farmer's ideas on the subject of fall purchases. So out went a questionnaire to the 12,824 Smiths who were subscribers to the farm journal. The replies, which were heavy, were used as a basis for estimating what the entire 1,100,000 farm subscribers were going to do with the money they receive from the marketing of their products.

One of the most interesting features developed by the questionnaire is that eleven and five-tenths per cent of the Smiths will buy automobiles, making a total of 126,500 cars to be bought this fall by the 1,100,000 farmers. In addition to showing the number of cars for which farmers will be in the market, the answers revealed that 116,200 have already determined upon the make of car which they will purchase.

Of this number 66,000 designated a certain low priced car. Of the remaining 50,200, the figures show, 22,000, or more than 43 per cent, will buy Buick cars. Of all cars specified Buick was second on the list and within its price field, led the list by a wide margin.

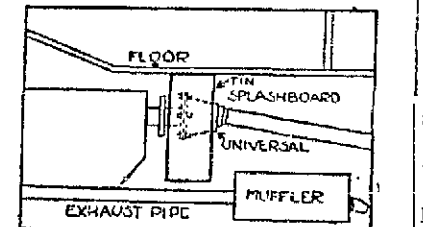

MAXWELL WINS RACE IN BIG ECONOMY TEST

"In a recent economy test staged by the Associated Motor Car Dealers of Sacramento, the Maxwell again proved its economy in open competition with other cars of its class, according to Mr. Bryan, local Maxwell-Chalmers dealer.

"Over a difficult course of 256 miles, from Sacramento to Lake Tahoe and back, the good Maxwell returned a class winner, with an average of 24.4 miles per gallon of gasoline.

"In the past few weeks, a good Maxwell has broken the record for time between Portland and Oakland; another beat the fastest train between Sacramento and Reno by two and a half hours; a third has climbed the Old Toll House grade, near Fresno, in second gear—the first car to officially accomplish this feat; and now a fourth good Maxwell takes class honors in a difficult economy run.

STOPS GREASE SPLASH
Owners of popular car have found an obnoxious smell of burning grease to be due to the splashing of grease from the front universal upon the exhaust pipe when the car was going fast. A tin plate, held over the universal by a stout wire from the floor board, would catch the grease that is thrown out.

MILLIONS DECLARED LOST TO FARMERS THRU ERRORS

WASHINGTON—Errors in department of agriculture crop estimates are costing farmers millions of dollars, according to charges made by Farm and Home, an agricultural journal, printed as an advertisement in the Sunday edition of the Washington Herald. Basing its own estimates on census figures, the journal charges that the department of agriculture over-estimated the current crop by 370,000,000 bushels and that corn prices should be ten to fifteen cents above actual quotations.

NEW ZEALAND LUMBER MAN DRIVES NASH FOUR

Having driven a Nash Four touring car 7,500 miles since May 4 without, as he expresses it, "even so much as a spark plug trouble," William Goss Jr., wholesale lumber man of Christ Church, New Zealand, was a visitor last week at the Milwaukee plant of Nash Motors Company, where the Nash Four is built. Accompanied by his wife Mr. Goss is touring from San Francisco to New York.

"This was an excellent opportunity to see the factory where our car was built," said Mr. Goss "and I was very much impressed not only with the size of the plant but with its thoroughly modern machinery and with the organized accuracy of methods employed. Institutions such as this typify the very spirit of American progress."

"In our car, besides ourselves, were 450 pounds of luggage. Our gasoline consumption on the entire trip thus far averaged 22 miles to the gallon."

Studebaker

LIGHT-SIX Now $1150

Why Studebaker can sell the LIGHT-SIX at the new low price

The LIGHT-SIX is built complete in the most modern automobile plant in the world, designed especially for the production of this car.

Studebaker manufactures in this plant its own drop forgings; its own castings, stampings, motors, axles, transmissions, its own steering gears, springs, bodies, tops and other vital parts.

Under these favorable manufacturing conditions and because of its enormous production and standardized methods of manufacture, Studebaker is able to make important savings—these savings are reflected in the price of the car to you.

tions and because of its enormous production and standardized methods of manufacture, Studebaker is able to make important savings—these savings are reflected in the price of the car to you.

The LIGHT-SIX is a real step forward in automobile engineering. No other light, six-cylindered automobile yet produced has a motor so free from vibration, nor so flexible and powerful.

What You Should Know About the LIGHT-SIX

Power — 40 H. P. in a detachable-head motor of great flexibility, remarkably free from vibration, and with the exclusive Studebaker inclined valve feature.

Economy — 18 to 22 miles to the gallon—12,000 to 15,000 miles on tires.

Balance—You could cut the LIGHT-SIX in two parts or four parts and find that each section would weigh the same. Such perfect balance means steady road-holding—there is no side sway or creeping.

Comfort — Equal distribution of weight means easy riding and easy handling. The "ouch" of one hand on the steering wheel is sufficient to keep it on the road.

See this car—drive it—test it. You will be won by it. You will understand why it is the Studebaker ideal of what a light, six-cylinder car should be.

DRUG EXPOSE TO ASTOUND U. S.

Huge Illegal Traffic Uncovered in Los Angeles

20,000 ADDICTS LISTED

Movie Stars in Hospital For Treatment

LOS ANGELES—An expose of drug addicts in Los Angeles and especially in the Hollywood film colony which may astound the United States, was hinted at here Saturday by Clement E. Peoples, chief investigator of the California board of pharmacy. Peoples and his agents have been quietly investigating and listing southern California's "snow birds" for months. The investigation was started before the scandal involving Roscoe Arbuckle turned national attention to alleged immoralities in Hollywood, motion picture center of the world. "We have 20,000 addicts listed in southern California," Peoples said. "The condition is astounding." RAIDERS ASTOUNDED Peoples was reticent about outlining the state's clean-up program. "We'll get farther if we keep our mouths shut about what we intend to do," he remarked. "We'd be blocked at every turn by a wealthy and unbelievably powerful combination if our program was made public. "It is known, however, that one raid on an extensive 'hop joint' was recently concluded with results that astonished even the raiders." It was apparent from this raid, officials estimated, that the supply sources of drugs and dope were organized and that the habit was largely indulged by its victims at institutions established and maintained for that purpose, rather than in the privacy of individual homes. This fact, it is believed, will make the fact easier to deal with. Captain John Pelletier, former supervisor of the United States social hygiene board and present secretary of the morals efficiency association of southern California, is generally credited as secretly cooperating with Peoples in the roundup being made. Hospital records in Los Angeles Saturday show that three film stars who are perhaps among the dozen brightest in the motion picture firmament, have recently undergone or are still undergoing medical attention in an effort to break the drug habit. One of these stars is a man. He has just completed treatment at the county hospital under an assumed name. Rumors that divorce proceedings were about to be started by his wife, are current in the picture colony, but have been denied. Of the two young women victims, one is an actress who was possibly the most popular in the country in the days when the picture industry was centered in New York. From her heyday of popularity "dope" has dragged her to near oblivion in a private hospital near Los Angeles. The third is a young woman, formerly a comedienne, who is said to have been forced to "cancel a serial contract before the pictures were completed because of a breakdown from excessive use of drugs.

A SCOUT FOR VIRGINIA

By HUGH PEINDEKTER

As I piled in after him I saw Pat and Dale entering their cabin, not Ward, the white Indian was running up the valley. And not a savage had shown himself with the exception of the one at the blackblock. I raised my rifle but Cousin laughed and knocked it aside and cried: "Let the dog make his kill! It's his coup!"

The warrior stabbed blindly. The dog and dying warrior fell dead by side.

Now a long thin line of Shawnees merged from the woods, running and leaping and jumping from side to side, sinking behind stumps and snatching behind the scattered trees.

"Good! We'll make a fine fight!" grimly said Cousin as he stepped from a loophole at the back of the cabin.

He fired the two barrels almost together, and laughed boisterously.

"Two tryin' to hide behind one oak tree," he explained. "Got one and an' spilled 'tother."

A voice called from the Granville line. I found a chink in the wall and beheld the face of the Englishman peering from the small end window.

"Who's there?" he kept demanding in a shrill voice.

"Two white scouts. Get to shooting!"

He vanished to help in the defense. Cousin had reloaded and was using the valley closely. But I was plunking into the log walls and I knew none of the savages were posing themselves, else my common would be shooting. From the Granville cabin several shots were fired without any effort so as we could make out. Then the Englishman was calling "I went forward."

"Ericus Dale says for us to stop going or he can't save us," he yelled.

"He can't save himself!" I yelled.

"What losses in there?"

"Lost Granville and the two dead, shot dead. Perhaps it's that way. I'm wounded—that's a count. You going to keep on going?"

"As long as we can pull the trigger."

I turned back to Cousin. He was scowling savagely thru his peephole. "Take the back, which watch for signs on the ridge," he mumbled.

Suddenly the savage howling ceased. Then the Englishman was once more calling us. I answered him and he loudly informed us: "Dale passes the word for us to stop fighting. Says he's going to save us. He's going out to talk with 'em."

I darted to Cousin's side and peered out. Dale came into view. In one hand he held up a string of white wampum. And as he slowly advanced he shouted in the Shawnee language:

"Do my brothers tire on their brother? Do they harm their brother's friends? Does the Pack-Horse-Man ask his red brothers to be kind only to have his words fall on dead ears? I bring you belts. My daughter in the cabin also brings belts to the Shawnees and Mingoes and the Delawares."

When he ceased Black-Hoof called out:

"We will lift up a peace pipe to our good friend, the Pack-Horse-Man. We will cover his friends with the smoke. Let him tell his friends not to be afraid and to throw down their guns."

Dale called on us in a stentorian voice to offer no resistance if we valued our lives then waved a hand and commanded:

"It's all right, Patricia! Come out!"

I jumped to tear the bar from the door, but Cousin hurried me aside panting:

"Too late! God! To think such a woman should walk into their bloody trap!"

His words sent me to the loophole. Patricia Dale was walking composedly toward her father, her slim hands holding up her belts.

"All you who would be spared come out and leave your guns behind!" called Dale.

The Englishman's voice excitedly cried:

"You two scouts in there."

I gave him heed and he informed me: "Granville and his sister say they are going out. Do you go out?"

"We shall stay here. It's better for you to die where you are," I told him.

"Ay, I think it's better myself."

My companion was panting for breath and was standing back so as to rest the muzzle of his rifle just inside the loophole. A glance revealed his deadly purpose. A tall warrior was now on his feet. I knew him to be Black-Hoof. I had seen him at Fort Pitt during one of those rare lulls between wars.

The Shawnee was careful to keep the girl and her father between him and the cabins. I pushed Cousin's gun aside and fiercely upbraided him for placing the Dales' lives in jeopardy.

"You fool!" he cried. "They're gone already. Are you, too, blind? If you love that gal out there and want to do her the greatest kindness a man can ever do to a border woman, shoot her!"

Granville began shouting: "Men my sister are comin' out. We surrender. Tell 'em, Mr. Dale! God knows nough blood's been spilled."

I heard their cabin door open. Then it closed with a bang and we heard the heavy bar drop into place. Then they crossed our line of vision, the man walking ahead with empty hands held high, his sister walking behind and wildly waving a white cloth. It was the Englishman, skeptical, because of our advice, who dropped the bar.

Cousin began muttering under his breath. I soon discovered the reason. John Ward was approaching the group from the opposite side of the valley and trying to keep some of the whites between him and our cabin.

"Shut up!" I whispered. "Watch close!"

Granville and his sister walked up to Black-Hoof, the woman still waving the cloth to make sure the chief beheld it and recognized its sacred character. Dale turned to give Cousin, the Englishman, and me one last chance to save our lives; and the hideous work began.

John Ward seized Patricia from behind, holding her by her arms as a bulwark against our lead. Black-Hoof with a lightning gesture raised his axe and struck Dale with the flat of it, sending him crashing to the ground. Almost at the same moment two devils leaped from the ground and with their axes struck Granville and his sister from behind. Black-Hoof dropped behind his log the moment he struck Dale.

I shall never forget the terrible screams which burst from the lips of Patricia Dale. Then she went limp and her head sagged over Ward's arms, and he began to walk backward with her to the forest.

I ran to the door and Cousin stuck out his foot and tripped me. "Your gal may be skered any yet," he encouraged. "She ain't in no danger's long as Black-Hoof wants her hand to swap if the settlers git him penned. Our first job is to git clear o' this cabin an' valley. Then we must head those dogs off an' do the next job right."

Cautiously we removed several of the puncheon slabs next to the wall. Cousin explored the length of the base log with his fingers and gave a little cry of delight.

He found a hole already dug near the front end of the cabin, the work of the dog. Working with our hunting knives we loosened the dirt and made it larger.

At dusk Cousin whispered, "I'll go ahead an' you pass out the rifles."

Ready?" I passed the rifles but first, and felt them gently removed from my grasp. I soon squirmed out into the refreshing evening air and lay motionless. Cousin was already working his way toward the third cabin, and I began creeping after him.

Cousin drew away from the end of the Granville cabin and was risking the second and last gap. Either the night was playing a trick or else the deer was partly open. I reached out my hand to learn the truth and touched a cold hand hanging limply over the threshold. That it was the Englishman's hand I had touched was evidenced by the short sleeve tucked in at the wrist.

Then a heavy weight landed on my back, knocking the breath from my lungs.

When I recovered my senses I was being dragged over the ground by means of a cord around my chest and under my arms.

"Let me stand up and walk," I said in Shawnee.

"Alive are you?" growled a white man's voice in English. "You'll be John Ward," I said as some one lifted me to my feet. "I am Red Arrow, a Shawnee. And don't you forget it."

They untied my hands, only to fasten them behind me. They shifted the waistcord to my neck, and then released my feet. Some one walked ahead, pulling on the cord, and I followed as best I could to escape being strangled. By daylight I perceived by the signs that the greater number of the band had gone ahead, probably under the lead of Black-Hoof.

A WIFE IN THE MAKING

By PHYLLIS PHILLIPS
ARLINE'S NEW PLANS

After that first meeting Ned and Arline met quite frequently. Now for dinner or again for the theater. She was always at her brightest in these occasions, and becomingly dressed. There was no keeping up with her high spirits.

"A vacation certainly does you a world of good," laughed Ned one night as they were coming out of the theater. Arline had been her most hilarious all during the show and kept him in gales of merriment.

"I feel like sixteen again. It's wonderful just to be happy and young and care-free—and with—"

with someone. Here she stopped herself quickly, and instead of the "someone you care for" she added, "someone who is an old friend."

They went in for a bite of supper and here again Arline seemed alive and happy. Munching and forgetful of time, the two sat telling each other of the day's events. Ned had had a letter from Cherry in which she told him the home news and how much she missed him. With what pride he mentioned this to his companion may be imagined. It was the most loving letter he had received from his wife, and Ned had been properly touched. After all, they were deeply in love. Their little differences could be adjusted.

Arline listened to his outburst with smiling lips, altho inwardly she was seething. How could she ever hope to fight this? All very well when things went wrong between them. But if a letter from Cherry could make Ned so joyful, he must really love her.

Then she spoke of her income. Lightly. Her father had increased it. She felt that she would like to do something worth while with such an astonishing sum. Maybe sink it into some business. She even hinted at becoming a future member of the Burroughs and Randall. Surely the two would welcome a substantial sum. It would be such fun for her to feel that she was a little bit boss as well as secretary.

At this Ned howled with amusement, called her a baby, and assured her that for her own sake she had better keep far away from the business world, save in her present capacity. It would only cause another good man's heart to ache. He spoke from experience.

The wily Arline said nothing in response to this. Merely smiled and looked away.

It was at this point in their tete a tete that an old friend of Cherry's walked into the restaurant with her escort. She saw Ned and came sailing up to him with a radiant smile.

"Well, of all people, Ned Randall. Where's Cherry?" as she saw a stranger seated opposite him.

"Too busy to come with me this trip; have her here next, tho," he assured Daisy, as he introduced her to Miss Bates. The two girls nodded, then Daisy excused herself and went back to her own table.

"Dear me, I hope this will not make trouble for you, Ned," bust from Arline as soon as the girl was gone.

"Trouble? Why on earth should their be trouble?" asked Ned in astonishment. "Can't two old friends meet by accident and have a bite or a few happy hours together without expecting trouble?"

"I should certainly think so, but you never can tell," answered Arline, looking a little bit mournful.

MUTT AND JEFF—WASN'T IT JUST LIKE JEFF TO THINK OF THIS?

BRINGING UP FATHER—

SHORT SHAVINGS

The yellow man has invaded Paris as well as London, owing to the absence of domestic help. A newspaper depicts a servant arriving at a French home, where the lady of the house exclaims in consternation, "But he does not know a word of French! What shall we do?"

"Do not hesitate a moment," says the husband, "Learn Chinese at once!"

The dealer had just received some live chickens in a crate when Mrs. Young entered to buy the Sunday dinner.

"If you like, madam," he said, "I will send you a couple of these chickens and send them over to your house."

"Well," replied the young housekeeper, hesitating cautiously, "if you are positive they are fresh, you may."

Gertrude was home for the Christmas holidays, and in her honor the old folks were holding a reception. And in their honor Gertrude brought forth her new garments.

Picking up a beautiful creation, she held it up before the admiring crowd and said, "Isn't this perfectly scrumptious? Just think, all this silk came from the little insignificant worm!"

Her hard-working father looked a moment, his brow furrowed.

"Of course," he said, "that is not the way to refer to your father."

In a man's life there are three mistakes. The first is when he decides to get married. The second is when he decides to get married. The third is when he decides to get married.

Otherwise because they're so cute, and when the high school seniors are sent to the military school, they don't die. The third is his shape in a bathing suit.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

WHILE there has been little or no change in industrial conditions in Lima proper during the past week, there are many and distinctive signs for the better in the nation at large. Pessimists are being slowly driven to cover, and psychologically, there has been a momentous change.

Lima still awaits settlement of the railway question for its big boost, along with activity in the motor truck industry. The latter is showing improvement, but railways are still hesitant in placing definite orders for motive power. Oil trade has touched bottom and despite the approach of the declining consumption period for gasoline, both crude and refined oils are firm to advancing. Farmers have passed the crisis and have been marketing new crops; rather than holding, as was the case last year.

Retail trade is better, and there is stronger buying power from the district. In Lima, a sane estimate cannot show 1,000 heads of families out of employment. Many men temporarily off the payrolls at the industrial shops, are really at work in other lines; eighty per cent of all men and women workers are still on pay. It must also be remembered that the salaried class now has a wider margin between their pay and necessities, than a year ago. Some savings banks report more individual depositors, but less volume in money, proving our contention that everybody is not out of work.

A getting-together between contractors and the building trades is needed to put pep into real estate and building. Prices in some trades are too high; and efficiency, that is a full day's work without restrictions, is still lacking.

Money is easier in the great centers and becoming slightly more available here, but no real ease is apparent. We look for snappy business this fall and the start of some expansion.

DISASTER

SENORS Tapia and Kopellmann, Argentine zoologists, sailed toward the South Pole to make observations.

Tapia fell into a deep crevice of ice. Rescued, hours later, gangrene started in his frozen fingers. To save his life, Kopellmann took scissors and cut off all of Tapia's fingers.

No anesthetic. As Kopellmann cut, he interspersed the Lord's Prayer with words of comfort: "Does it pain you much, comrade? * * * Hallowed be thy name? * * * Courage! * * * Thy will be done, on earth * * * It is finished, comrade, it is finished!"

In disaster, prayer is man's instinctive and only comfort.

EUROPE

ITALY is in worse shape than any other European country. Inflation of prices, currency and wages is tremendous and the people are spending all they make, says Arthur Reynolds, Chicago banker, just returned from abroad.

Reynolds says the Belgians are working hard, have fine crops, and are rebuilding rapidly. He found French farmers frugal and industrious, but French city and factory people spending extravagantly and not over-fond of labor.

Germany, says Reynolds, is working harder than any other European country. She is producing goods at a third the cost of other nations, and her workmen are demanding longer hours and more wages.

This looks as if Germany and Belgium will recover first.

HOMER

A HERMIT from Rome, at Dubuque, Iowa, had a lot of caged birds. State law against caging song birds freed his pets. One, a Kentucky cardinal, refuses to leave its cage. That cage is home, and nothing looks quite so good to the cardinal.

The home instinct is as powerful among animal life as among humans. Every form of animal life reaches the highest point of its expression by establishing a home, with ma looking after the kids and the housework, and pa bringing home the bacon.

Don't worry, home is one institution nothing can destroy.

AS YOU LIKE IT

A few weeks ago the Republican leader in the New York Senate admitted he had received a chest of silver from the New York City detective force after he had pushed a salary bill thru the Legislature. Now comes the democratic police commissioner of the city who admits he accepted $12,000 as a gift from Allan A. Ryan, well known Wall Streeter. Thus we see how politicians forget party traditions—a Republican being for free silver and a Democrat for sound money.

Commissioners say they spent thousands on Allen-co roads this summer. Or which one half of one per cent or less was spent for leveling stone.

"America and England can share the seas," says a London newspaper. The English idea of sharing is, England 90 per cent, the others can divide the 10.

JUST FOLKS—BY EDGAR A. GUEST

BUD'S WISH

I wisht I wuz a man coz then, I needn't go to bed till ten. An' I could stay an' listen to the talk the way the old folks do. Then I'd know what it is they say. The times they make me go away. An' Pa says "Bud just disappear, 'This isn't for a boy to hear."

I wisht I wuz a man, an' I could have a second piece of pie. Or anything I wanted which. For little stumblers is too rich. "Then I could pass my piece to 'em. They would be serve me right away. Or if I didn't eat my bread. There never would be nothin' said."

I wisht I wuz a man grown up. So's they'd put coffee in my cup. Instead o' milk, an' I could do the very things I wanted to. An' go down town with all the men. An' telephone 'em now an then. At night they shouldn't wait for me. Coz I would not be home to tea.

I wisht I wuz a man, an' I would never have to ever cry. Coz men, as far as I can see, Aren't always gettin' hurt like me. An' nothin' seems to pain them so. They're simply got to let it show. My Pa says men must suffer, too. But I don't think they really do.

MISSING MILLIONS

EVERYBODY is getting poorer—in dollars. But there are practically as many dollars in existence as ever. This puzzles a reader. He asks, "Where have all the dollars gone to? Who has them?" Money in circulation for every person in the country was $34.68 in 1913. It increased to a high point of $59.48 last November. Now it is down to about $52.

"Yes," you say, "but dollars seem to be disappearing faster than they are taken from circulation. Where do they go?"

Easily answered. Wash a suit of woolen underwear. It shrinks, and you wonder where the shrinkage has gone. The woolen garment hasn't really lost. It merely has gotten tighter.

So with dollars. Money has shrunk tighter. Dollars, as shown by bank clearings, are changing hands more slowly.

When dollars move slowly, we have depression. When dollars gallop, there's a boom. Whether you get $52 a month or $52 a day depends on how fast money is changing hands. That depends on spending.

THE chief thing that is wrong with us is lack of capital, says Samuel M. Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works.

Yet capital, measured in terms of buying power instead of face value, is just as big now as during the 1918 boom.

Less money is available for business. But that's compensated by the fact that prices and wages are down so that business can do as much with, say 60 cents, as it formerly could with $1.

Available capital didn't actually increase during the war. While the boom was on, business was conducted largely on imaginary capital—inflated dollars. Now the dollar has run out of war booze and is sobering up. The delusion, the imaginary capital, is gone. But the loss is not actual—merely one of bookkeeping.

IN 1914 a man bought a share of stock for $80. It rose to $280 during the war. That man thought he had made $200. So he cashed in, which few did. Most couldn't resist waiting for the profit to reach $300. The increase was imaginary—what Wall Street calls "paper millions."

Now the stock is down to $80 again. And the owner wails that he has lost $200. He hasn't lost anything. What he thinks he lost, he never had. It never really existed.

A railroad's stocks and bonds fluctuate daily, yet the tracks, freight cars and so on remain unchanged. Stocks and bonds merely are certificates of ownership in property. The property hasn't changed, though an increasing buying power of the dollar makes it look as if the nation's wealth is melting like snow on a hot stove.

No, Rollo, we're not getting poorer. We're merely learning to talk about the same commodities in terms of thousands instead of millions.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH US, ANYWAY?

Julius Kruttschnitt, Chairman of the Executive Committee, Southern Pacific Railroad, Answers The News Question Today

I BELIEVE the present unemployment of several million workers is caused fundamentally by:

ONE: Our system of taxation, which thru heavy excess profit corporation taxes and surtaxes on individual incomes, discourages initiative and stunts by robbing success of its fruits, thereby offering strong inducements to take capital out of industries and to freeze it by investing in tax-exempt securities.

KRUTTSCHNITT TWO: The slow decline in wage rates and necessarily therefore, in prices from war-time levels leaves them so high as to stop manufacturing and building.

RAILROAD DILEMMA The effect of high wages in industries has been reflected in our falling exports and in our inability to compete in world markets. As to railroads, where wages are arbitrarily held up by government agencies well above levels prevailing in other industries, construction has been stopped and all improvements except those of the utmost urgency have been deferred.

Seven hundred and seventeen miles of new line were built in 1941—80 years ago; 314 were built in 1920!

The inability of the railroads to purchase at the prevailing high costs has been aggravated by the failure of the government to pay them several hundred millions owed for rental during federal control, and refusal to fund $763,000,000 paid out for improvements by the government during its control and immediately deducted from the rental owed the carriers.

THE REMEDIES A sane statement of the causes suggests the remedies.

Our system of taxation must be revised substantially as recommended by the secretary of the treasury. Wages must be adjusted to existing conditions.

Inefficient and slothful working methods and less production, engendered by the fabulous wages paid under stress of national peril, must give way to honest, efficient work and greater zeal, which spell increased production.

LIMA CLUB HAS PEP.

Lima Kiwanian—"Pep" the one suggests the other!

You'd naturally expect any member of the local club to say something such; but just ask your business neighbor—he knows!

So does International Kiwanian know—the rapidly with which the Lima club has grown the live-wireness of its personnel the hundred per cent interest, enthusiasm and spirit of co-operation of the club are responsible for the request of the International organization department that Lima Kiwanian sponsor the extension work of the club in the Ohio territory.

A man cannot become a Kiwanian unless he is square, live, enthusiastic. But should there, by any oversight of his or the club's remain in his mind a doubt as to the value to the individual and to the community of a band of men pledged to the principles of service, co-operation and fellowship, the mixing with Kiwanians will soon convert him, for life!

PAGEANT PLANS FOR KIWANIS

Decorations at Elks Home For State Convention.

IS WORK OF WALT DEWEESE

Fancy Dance to be Staged by Seven Little Girls.

The scheme for the decoration of the Elks' Club, where sessions of the Kiwanis convention are to be held Tuesday and Wednesday, was created by Walt DeWeese, whose ability in that line is not unknown in Lima.

In planning the decorations, DeWeese has gone just a step further and is including a sort of pageant to be given the evening of the Governor's dinner and dance.

The tableau will be one of the feature events of the evening. The stage in the Elks banquet hall will be the setting and the idea of welcome to the visitors is motive back of the idea.

A blue back drop, somewhat expressing the school of scenic adopted by Joseph Urban, will first greet the eyes of the spectator when the velvet curtains are whisked back.

In the center of the drop is a scrim. It shows a panoramic view of Lima. "The City of Worth While Opportunities," is painted below the picture.

DANCE BY LITTLE GIRLS

Seven little girls will dance. Their movements express youth and the natural grace that goes with it. When they have finished, the picture in the scrim changes and the seal of Ohio appears. As it fades away, Miss Margaret Abrams, Kiwanis Queen, is shown on a throne. She will read the Kiwanis pledge. Colored lighting effects and the use of a spot will add to the tableau.

The entire idea is well carried out and will be supported by the music of a full orchestra. The seven little dancers are: Naomi Lippincott, Glenna Marie Hobart, Margaret Ellnor Leech, Miriam Morton, Annette Vincent, Inez Zellen-sky and Josephine Pierce.

Two big electric signs will be a part of the decorations. They show the Kiwanis seal. One is in the hall and the other will be in the lodge room, where business sessions are to be conducted.

The entire building will be decorated in blue and white. Kiwanis colors, set off with the Stars and Stripes. The exterior of the building is a waving mass of color.

Everything has been so arranged that the decorations blend harmoniously with the surroundings.

Fable Of Timid Runt

"Why Should I Become a Kiwanian?" This One Asked. Fore-gathering with Successes Will Do As Much for the Business Soldier As Being Drafted Did for the Timid Runt.

(By "JIM" MORTON).

But why should I become a Kiwanian?

Someone ever ask you that? Someone will, sometime. When he does, tell him the Fable of the Timid Runt.

This is it. Once upon a time—all good fables begin that way—there was a Timid Runt. He wore Glasses, and had Long Hair, and weighed About 117 in his Shoes, and carried a Copy of Browning in his Pocket and was Vice President of the Ladies' Aid Society.

Along came a Disagreeable man named Crowder who was Something in the Army and informed the Timid Runt he would Have to Stop wearing hair ribbons and reading Browning and go to Fight for his Country.

The Timid Runt didn't Like it, but he didn't See Anyway. Out of it Copies of Browning, Long Hair and Vice Presidencies of Ladies Aid Societies are not even as good Reasons for Draft Exemption as that possessed by the Man Who Said he couldn't go Because he was the Sole Support of a Flivver.

So they took the Timid Runt and put him Inside a Uniform, and fed him Three Square Meals a day and made him Work his Arms and Legs and caused him many Sore Spots, and zot him up before Daylight and put him to bed With the Chickens, and taught him to use a Gun and a Spade and say "Sir" when spoken to, and Generally Discommodorated his Philosophy of Life.

His Mates Taught him that if He expected to get his Fair Share of Eats, and his Place in the Shower Bath, and his Own Blanket at night and Keep his own Cigarettes for himself, He'd Have to Stop being a Vice President of a Ladies' Aid Society and learn Some Sort of an apology for wearing a Man's Pants.

Meanwhile they Sent him Over to France and Ran him around the Country and Taught him to Walk Twenty Miles a Day with seventy pounds on his Back and How to Hold his bayonet so he would Stick the Other Fellow First, and not to Jump like a Scared Cat when a 42-centimeter gun nine miles away said "Good Morning, Andrew," or anything like that. Finally they Put him in a Front Line Trench and Told him to lick the German army, and the Funny Thing about it was That he Took Them seriously and Started in to Do It!

All Good Fables have a moral, and this being My Column and My night to Howl, I insist that this is a Perfectly Good and well made Fable.

This is the Moral! The Fellow who Flocks by Himself is Likely to be a lonely sort of individual.

The Fellow whose Ideas of Life are Wrapped up in Browning, Ladies' Aid, selling Ribbons and Long Hair is apt to be a Timid Runt.

The Fellow who is Pitched Head-long into the Society of a lot of regular Guys, and has to act like a He-one whether he Feels like it, or Not, who is taught how to fight, and Surrounded with Men who Want to Fight, who Think, Eat, Sleep and Live right, fight, fight ALL the Time, is pretty Apt to get a Thrill for Fighting which even a German Army Can't Quench.

That's why the Chap who Begins this Fable with a Question should be a Kiwanian. He can't possibly Associate Himself with a bunch of Live Ones, Live with them, and not Be Alive, too. He can't, because in the First Place, human nature isn't made That Way, and in the Second Place, if he won't, Kiwanis will Open the Bag and Spill him outside in a Cold World!

Any Fellow who can become a Kiwanian and Won't, is Overlooking a Bet. He's Forgetting a Fundamental Principle of human nature—that the Only way to be or to do, is first to Believe, and there is no Shorter path to Believe in One's Self, than the Belief in one's self of Other Men.

Kiwanis spells Optimism, Co-operation, Mutual Help. It means the Ninety-Nine hold up the One Hundredth, and the One Hundredth Holds up the Ninety-Nine. It will make a Business Man out of a Poet, a Regular Fellow out of a Lawyer, a Commerce Soldier who is Anxious to go "over the top" out of a Shrinking Human Violet that previously didn't know It Could Fight.

When a chap asks you why he should be a Kiwanian, tell him that Kiwanians succeed, and that Fore-gathering with Successes will do as much for the Business soldier as Being Drafted did for the Timid Runt.

Old Pop Kiwanis says: "Too many fellows are still payin' installments on the engagement ring when they need the money to pay for a baby buggy."

EUGENE T. LIPPINCOTT
First Vice President

"IF HE'S SQUARE WE TAKE HIM IN"

It is the Way He Treats His Fellowman That Counts Says Kiwanian Jackson.

GET KIWANIS SPIRIT!

"Is size or age considered when an applicant is taken in to the Kiwanis fold?" Big Chief Walter Jackson was asked. For the sake of additional clarity he was asked to put his answer in "limpid lyric." Here's what he says:

It's not the size of a man that counts
Nor the way he shares his chin.

"It's the way he treats his fellowman
"If he's square, we take him in."

What constitutes a Kiwanian?

Big Chief Walter Jackson was asked this question on the eve of the 1921 Kiwanis convention of which the local club is the host. The Lima Club's beloved president gave this reply:

A Kiwanian must recognize the worthiness of all legitimate occupations and professions which are based on honest trading, the tenet of Kiwanis thereby affording each brother an opportunity best to serve his fellowmen, his community and his country.

He must be a man who accepts the precepts of honest trading as the true basis of all business, professions and occupations. He must be a disciple of efficiency and must be ready to exchange ideas of business.

A Kiwanian must be liberal and broad minded in all matters pertaining to his own or his fellowman's business.

He must evidence a spirit of patriotism.

He should strive for the betterment of social, civic, industrial, economic conditions of his community.

He should endeavor to accomplish all in a spirit of cheerful-optimism which will engender warm hearted, sympathetic, good fellowship.

Efficiency

Hoover-Bond efficiency has the full meaning of the Kiwanian application: The benefit of our patrons. Buying power of 26 stores, and hence greater volume of sales enables us to sell home furnishings for less money. We believe that is the kind of efficiency that counts.

Co-Operation

We make it a point to study the needs and desires of our customers. We put ourselves in their place, then co-operate with them as we would have them co-operate with us, were we in their place and they in ours. This spirit of co-operation, a Kiwanian asset, has long been one of our greatest assets in business.

Service

We serve. That is our business. It is one of the mighty factors that has built Hoover-Bond company to its present immense proportions. PROFESSIONAL NOTICES

CURED AT LAST OF ECZEMA
After 20 years of increasing torment from Eczema, causing all my limbs to become swollen out of all proportion and trying all kinds of treatment, each resulting in failure, saw a case even worse than my own that Dr. George had cured and went at once to see him about my own case, who pronounced it curable. I went under his treatment at once, and to my astonishment, started to improve at once. My general health became restored and today am feeling better than I have for 20 years. I say this for the benefit of others that might be so afflicted. Oh, if only I had heard of such a doctor before.
My address is Mrs. P. T. Roebuck, Mendon, Ohio.
This Dr. George I treated with is located at 322 N. West-st., Lima, Ohio. I don't know his phone number.

GREAT POSSIBILITIES FOR KIWANIS DECLARE OFFICIALS

Four Officers of Local Kiwanis Club Give Answers to the Question "What Do You Think Kiwanis?" Each Predicts a Constantly Enlarging Field of Activities for the Organization.

"What do you think of Kiwanis?" This question was put to each of four officers of the Lima club.

All were unanimous in their approval and each predicted a greater field of possibilities for Kiwanis organization in Lima.

"Gene" Lippincott, first vice president, was given an opportunity to express his views on "what he thought of Kiwanis." He says:

"These are the greatest times in the history of the world. It is a time when men must devote themselves to the study of the problems of peace and the reconstruction and the readjustments commercially, politically and socially that the new times demand. How innocuous seem the incidents of those who used to call us the nation of dollar hunters. They never grasped the fact that the American business man, although the keenest and ablest in the world, had another side to his nature—that he was not only an able and successful man—but also the greatest idealist in the world, at ordinary times he would devote himself to carrying on his business to success but the very minute his ideals were touched and endangered he threw aside every other consideration and devoted himself solely to the defense of them. A reflection upon the work of the Americans not only bring great comfort to the Kiwanians every where who have in full measure participated in the realization of American ideals, but affords an opportunity at this time to reflect upon the responsibilities that the realization of these ideals has developed upon them.

"The old order has unquestionably gone. The period of adjustment is at hand—the best expression we have of Kiwanis ideals is the great program of activities which these clubs are engaged in. The fact that live business men have met together in days when great needs presented themselves has inevitably produced a program of activity. It hasn't been a case of knowing Kiwanis principles and seeking ways to express them, it has been a case of a group of business men relating themselves to every need that has come to their attention."

"What do you think of Kiwanis?" "Ans" Potter, second vice-president of the local club, was asked. Here's his answer:

"The Kiwanis movement should receive the serious consideration of every business man. Business is the big thing in every man's life from which all other interests and activities derive their support. Kiwanis is based upon business, and finds its expression in the development of commercial transactions. What the Kiwanis movement may amount to is limited only by the vision which inspires the individual members. Its ideals are the highest ethical standards. With Kiwanis clubs scattered all over the United States and Canada its importance to business is seen in this tremendous force for the boardest, most helpful and most practical application of the Golden Rule applied to every day business life. Kiwanis stands for the betterment of business primarily, and for the eradication of inefficiency. Its future is as big in possibilities as business is big in reality."

"What's your idea of Kiwanis?" This question was asked J. G. Harris, treasurer of the local club. It didn't take Teddy long to "get us told."

"Kiwanis stands for more than more bread or more dollars and cents. These things may be the string of that wonderful fabric of life, which the Kiwanis shuttle is weaving but the main body of the pattern is made of the warp, which lasting colors and materials of which brotherly love, unselfishness, high ideals, noble resolves, civic pride, and love of country are composed. The future of our country demands of each of us concerted action toward a successful issue and — here is where Kiwanis makes good."

"What do you think of Kiwanis?" Clay Paine, secretary of the local club, was asked, and he replied:

"Kiwanis is an organization made up of level-headed, far-seeing business men. Kiwanis stands for something other than noon lunch-cons, the easy smile and the glad hand. Kiwanis believes that the hands that help are better than the lips that speak.

"Born in war times when need for concerted action abounded, Kiwanis found herself. Her code of ethics, her ideals and purposes have already been expressed in service for country. The telling of Kiwanis' part in the war would simply be the recounting of the highest impulses that come to men and finding expression in unselfish service.

"In Lima Kiwanis has helped to develop a pulsating community spirit, which puts new public spirit into every municipality. Kiwanis has a great future here."

R. R. TRUBEY
Third vice president of Lima Club.

DARE TO MANAGE YOUR BUSINESS DIFFERENTLY!

Dare to do things differently. Be modern. Be progressive. This is one fundamental stressed by Kiwanis. Some wise Bravo has asked the following questions:

—Are you the letter
—or the carbon copy?
—Are you the voice
—or the echo?
—Are you the original
—or just the imitation.
And he concludes with a phrase of sound advice,
"Dare to do things differently."

KIWANIS RESULT OF MODEST IDEA

Started As Luncheon Club In 1915 and Now Boasts 55,000 Members.

The Kiwanis idea, which originated in a luncheon club in 1915, today embraces a membership of 55,000 in the United States and Canada.

Today the clubs have international headquarters in Chicago and the affairs of the organization are presided over by international officers, a board of trustees and district governors.

The board of trustees consists of the president, the immediate past president, the first, second and third vice presidents, the treasurer of the international organization and eight others to hold office two years, four to be elected at each international convention. The chairman of the district governors is ex-officio a member of the board.

For the administration of the affairs of the organization the United States and Canada are divided into districts, each of which holds a convention annually and each of which is presided over by a district governor. The districts in many instances correspond to state boundaries, but in territory less thickly populated by Kiwanis clubs, two or more states together form a single district.

CLEARING HOUSE OF IDEAS

Club's Benefits As Seen by Joe Hartline, Sergeant at Arms.

In response to a request that he tell what he thinks of Kiwanis, Joe Hartline, Sergeant at Arms jotted down the following observations:

The Kiwanis movement which has spread over the United States and Canada like fire in a sedge field is not a new idea. It is the organization and crystallization of an idea which has for years steadily grown in the minds of all men of all occupations. The Kiwanis clubs are an organized effort to allow men to put into working form the ideas which they already had, a realization that it is better to love than to hate, better to co-operate than to compete and that a man may be in the same profession, may sell the same goods or may make the same things you make and yet not be a horse thief or a cutthroat.

No man ever became a member of a Kiwanis club who was not made a better citizen, a better business man and a better husband and father thereby. He becomes a better citizen because every Kiwanis club is active in all matters for the public good and for civic betterment. Activities in these lines broaden a man by making him understand that the general good is better than blindly following the fetish of political party.

DISCUSS BROAD PRINCIPLES.
Kiwanians become better business men because the Kiwanis clubs are clearing houses of ideas. Men in all lines discuss the big broad principles of business and teach the gospel that any man who has raised the standard of his own business has raised the standard of his line, of his town and of business as a whole.

They are made better husbands and fathers because the biggest enemy of domestic happiness in this country is that men get so absorbed in the mad race for dollars that they neglect the most important institution in civilization, the home.

When a man who has been chained to his desk early and late finds that he can break away for an hour once a week and go to a Kiwanis luncheon and mix with his fellows and have a good time and better his business by going back to it refreshed and with new ideas, he will also soon learn that he can also better his ability by getting away from the grind and spend time with his own family.

SOMETHING BETTER THAN DOLLARS.
The bread and butter problem faces every man. It is organization like Kiwanis which teach men that there is something bigger and better in life than the mere piling up of dollars.

Kiwanis teaches that the better policy brand of honesty is not fit to practice; that honesty for honesty's sake, that decent business methods for decency's sake are the only foundations on which any business can successfully be built.

The crystallization and putting into working form of these general ideas is the function of these clubs and the rapid growth of the organization is proof that most men are good business men and that by far the large majority of people are just old fashioned nice folks and want to do things in a nice way.

U. S. MAY REVIVE JOB BUREAU

Davis Seeks Re-establishment of Employment Service

WILL ASK $250,000 FUND

Harding's Conference Likely to Back Plan

(By HERBERT W. WALKER) WASHINGTON — Revival of the United States employment service to aid in finding work for the millions of men now jobless, is imperative, Secretary of Labor Davis has decided.

An emergency appropriation to re-establish the service, probably will be asked of congress soon, it was learned at the labor department Saturday night. An initial sum of $250,000 will be asked under present plans.

The proposal also will be submitted to President Harding's unemployment conference, which will open its sessions here Monday with 51 distinguished officials, capitalists, labor leaders and public spirited citizens present.

PURPOSE REVERSED. Should it receive the approval of the conference, which seems certain, officials are confident congress would promptly allow the appropriation.

The revived federal service will act as a clearing house for a nationwide voluntary employment service which the administration hopes will result from the conference.

When the federal service comes to life, its purpose will be exactly opposite from that for which it was originally established. Former President Wilson first recommended the service so that sufficient men might be found for war work. Its future obligation will be to find work for the men.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover and other administration leaders believe the present critical unemployment situation can be greatly relieved by the establishment of voluntary employment organizations throughout the country which would work under the direction of the revived federal service.

The administration hopes to appeal to the patriotism of the country and arouse it to the seriousness of the unemployment situation, so that the voluntary employment agencies will be promptly formed in each locality.

Plans for the conference were virtually complete Saturday night. President Harding will address the delegates either Monday or Tuesday and probably outline the administration's program as to what it believes can be accomplished.

The conference probably will last ten days.

initially established. Former President Wilson first recommended the service so that sufficient men might be found for war work. Its future obligation will be to find work for the men.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover and other administration leaders believe the present critical unemployment situation can be greatly relieved by the establishment of voluntary employment organizations throughout the country which would work under the direction of the revived federal service.

The administration hopes to appeal to the patriotism of the country and arouse it to the seriousness of the unemployment situation, so that the voluntary employment agencies will be promptly formed in each locality.

Plans for the conference were virtually complete Saturday night. President Harding will address the delegates either Monday or Tuesday and probably outline the administration's program as to what it believes can be accomplished.

The conference probably will last ten days.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR KIWAN MEET

No Confusion in Providing Hotel Facilities.

HEADQUARTERS AT ARGONNE

State Convention of Kiwanians Opens Tuesday.

Confusion usually attendant upon obtaining hotel reservations during the average convention has been entirely eliminated from the fourth annual session of Ohio Kiwanis clubs, which opens in Lima Tuesday.

Each Kiwanian coming to the convention will know in advance just where he is to stay and what he is to pay. There will be nothing for him to worry about in that respect after reaching the city.

In many places where conventions of one sort or another have been held, ever since annual meetings of all sorts of orders and lodges were inaugurated, delegates and visitors have not infrequently been overjoyed, after an all day search to bunk in a bath room.

The Lima Kiwanis club hotel and reservation committee, headed by Frank Pringle, chairman, has endeavored to eliminate this troublesome factor.

All reservations have been made at the hotels of the city thru the committee.

RESERVATION PLANS

As fast as received, cards have been sent out, which read:

"Dear Kiwanian: Reservations have been made for you and wife at the hotel beginning September 26, 1923. Your room number is ———. To avoid confusion, present this card at your hotel upon arrival. See you in Lima."

On the same card the guests are urged to register at the Argonne, headquarters hotel for the convention.

By working out quarters for the visitors in advance, the usual scramble to obtain rooms will be taken off their minds.

All the Kiwanians from other cities will have to do is to go to their hotel, register and present the card. Arrangements have been made at the hotels in advance for each person.

The visitor, after removing the stains of travel will have nothing to do but enjoy the convention.

HEADQUARTERS AT ARGONNE

Three floors of the Argonne, headquarters hotel, have been taken over by the committee.

Reservations there are filled. William Haefner, manager of the Argonne, states. Each Kiwanian coming there will know in advance the price he will have to pay for his room. "There will be no increase in rates," Haefner states.

A booth for the registration will be built in the southwest corner of the hotel lobby. If possible an extra room clerk will be stationed there to take care of room keys and attend to Kiwanis mail.

The mezzanine floor will be at the disposal of guests for lounging and card playing. Employees of the hotel will be detailed to attend to the wants of the visitors promptly.

West of the Argonne is a vacant lot owned by the hotel company. It will be allotted to visitors who drive to the convention, for auto parking space. Some eight parties from distant Ohio cities have written that they are driving thru.

Almost an equal number of motor parties from cities within easy reach of Lima are expected to be here.

Both the phone operator and clerk will have a complete list of the guests at hand, so that if inquiries are made concerning anyone, the information can be obtained in a few minutes.

FACILITIES AMPLE

"There will be ample facilities for guests," Frank Pringle stated. "We

Kiwanis Code of Business Ethics

A S A KIWANIAN: I will do my part to introduce into the business life of the nation at large, and my immediate community in particular, the ideals, and Principles of Kiwanis which I subscribed to as a member of International Kiwanis.

I will cooperate with International Kiwanis toward creating a "Kiwanis Standard" in Business.

I will join in a united effort of Kiwanians throughout the United States and Canada—to inculcate the uplifting influences of Kiwanis into business life—toward eliminating any and all unethical practices, as judged so by the Kiwanis Standard, whether in operation through ignorance or with intent.

In my immediate business or profession the Kiwanis Principles of Brotherly Love and Service shall govern all my actions and relations in respect to both clients and employees. Further, that this spirit shall also control my attitude toward my creditors and competitors.

I believe, that while Kiwanis does not demand that I deal exclusively with Kiwanians, it is just and fair that I consider my fellow Kiwanians in all business transactions—and, all things being equal, to extend the courtesy of my business to them.

I will be interested in the business welfare of my fellow Kiwanians, and when the opportunity arises will do my utmost to further his business either by recommendation, or by passing on to him any information to his advantage.

I will consider it to be my duty to report to Kiwanians any malicious reports or comments which come to my knowledge as reflecting against his credit or success.

I will also consider it my duty to Kiwanis to report to my club Executive, the name of any Kiwanian whom I know to be willingly practicing business methods which do not reflect to his honesty or integrity.

I believe that every local club should be at the service of each of their respective members, toward assisting him to solve any problem which may arise in his particular business or profession.

I believe in a "Kiwanis Standard" in Business, governed by the Ideals of International Kiwanis—Brotherly Love, Service, and Square Dealing.

will endeavor to find quarters for everyone in the hotels. We have about filled up the Argonne, Norval and Lima House and have the Barr and Waldo left.

More than 600 reservations have been handled. Of the reservations made, Pringle stated that about 75 per cent have stated that they will arrive Monday. In making the reservations, the wishes of the visitors have been followed out by the committee.

Guests desiring adjoining rooms have been accommodated. Others want only a light airy room. Some made some stipulation as to price. Even the two Kiwanians from Cincinnati who wrote that they were very corpulent and therefore wanted a room with twin beds, have been accommodated.

A chart will be sent to each hotel by the committee, showing the names of the guests assigned, with the time of arrival, whether by rail or motor and other information.

For the convenience of visitors, information bureaus will be located in the Argonne and Norval lobbies. Information of all sorts about Lima will be furnished visitors.

FREE AUTO STORAGE

Free automobile storage will be furnished by the Lima club at the Lima Motor Car company garage in W. Market-st. A number of delegations intend to drive thru. About 31 cars are expected to come from Cincinnati. That city is believed to be sending for the 1922 convention.

While Frank Pringle stated that he believed all guests can be housed in the hotels, rooms have been reserved in private houses for eleventh hour arrivals. Individual members in the city are prepared to care for any overflow.

A great many of the visitors will be accompanied by their wives. Pringle stated. For this reason all meetings will be open to women.

"The convention committee feels gratified to know," stated Pringle, "that the management of local hotels have aided us in every way, by accepting all reservations sent them and have by their co-operation made the work of this committee a success."

HEAR GOOD MEDICINE

Some more good Kiwanis medicine is handed down via the Kiwanis Torch:

Set your face in the right direction.

Then travel right along.

Never entertaining a discouraging thought.

The type of thought we entertain creates the condition feared.

This is not Christian Science.

It's just horse sense.

Whatever channel the mind sets for itself.

The life will follow.

Think success. Believe prosperity.

The moment you can get this state of mind.

Success and prosperity are yours already.

Kellogg Plant Grows From Ashes To Modern Concern.

While operating a small candy kitchen a number of years ago on S. Main-st, W. M. Kellogg, owner of the place, had visions of sometime being at the head of a big concern manufacturing sugar products.

Business picked up, and Kellogg sought a bigger place. Orders for his goods came faster than he could supply the demand.

He told his story to A. T. Gardner and A. L. White. They investigated. It was then that they became interested and, with Kellogg, formed plans for building a modern candy factory.

Their plans quickly became a reality. A two-story brick building was constructed on E. Pearl-st, just east of Union-st.

Then, just when they were getting a start, fire destroyed their plant. That was last May 20.

But this did not discourage the three men. They immediately set to work and two days after the disastrous fire, men were on the job cleaning up the debris. The next week, builders were busy laying the foundation for the new building, which today houses The Kellogg Sugar Products company.

It is a three story structure, modern in every respect.

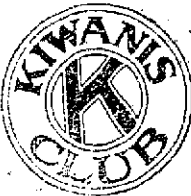

Forty men and women are employed, and more will be added during the fall and winter months.

New up-to-date machinery has been installed in every department. Hundreds of pounds of candy are turned out every hour, and all of the various kinds from "jelly beans" to high class chocolates are manufactured.

On the third floor of the building a rest room and restaurant is provided for women employees.

Two months ago the concern was incorporated for $100,000. A. L. White is president; W. M. Kellogg, vice president, and A. T. Gardner, secretary and sales manager.

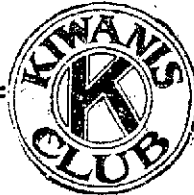

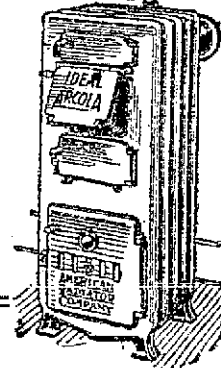

Besides these three men, W. L. Russell and Frank Sieber compose the board of directors.

ENTHUSIASM IS VITAL ELEMENT

Kiwanis Compound of Confidence, Knowledge, Interest and Emotion.

Kiwanis means "trade"—fair dealing, square trading—but what does Kiwanis trade in? Listen, here's the whole thing in a nutshell.

- 1—Ideals.
- 2—Inspiration.
- 3—Knowledge.
- 4—Opinion.
- 5—Service.
- 6—Business.

"Kiwanis aims to serve its purposes outlined above in really practical ways for the benefit of each other and for society at large. How well it will succeed depends entirely upon the individual Kiwanis member," declares a local Kiwanian.

"Kiwanis is notable for the practicality of its aims, ideals and purposes. Therefore it possesses utility. It performs some definite service to those who know it. Since it performs a useful service, it has earned the right to its existence.

"This statement justifying Kiwanis is given here for the purpose of forming a foundation for a discussion of its aims, its ideals, its purposes.

"Many of us go along for years and enjoy the fruits of Kiwanis fellowship and Kiwanis activity without fully appreciating the strength of its aims, its ideals, its purposes and its utility. It is not a Kiwanis creed; neither is it a lecture on Kiwanis 'doing'. Its purposes, its reason for existence, and the elements necessary to Kiwanis success are clearly visible in the analysis of Kiwanis itself.

"It is an imperfection of rapacious growth that in many localities there is a lack of appreciation of Kiwanis, a lack of knowledge of the six fundamentals of the organization. Out of this grows a lack of enthusiasm and ineffectiveness. Knowledge of Kiwanis among intelligent men cannot but bring greater results than might otherwise be attained through mere meeting of good fellowship and business boosts.

"Here in a way, besides analyzing Kiwanis we are advertising Kiwanis as serving certain definite purposes. Will Kiwanis make good? This depends on the individual Kiwanian and the individual Kiwanis club.

"A vital element of Kiwanis success is enthusiasm. The best analysis of enthusiasm that the writer has ever been able to find is. Enthusiasm is a compound of confidence, knowledge, interest and emotion."

KIWANIS CREED

That sound spirit of "boosterism" which characterizes Kiwanis expressed in the organization which concludes with the observation that faith is sand on the track but doubt is sand in the bearings. The booster saying goes:

"Yours is the greatest Kiwanis Club on earth."

"Yours the greatest city in the Union."

"Yours the greatest country in the universe."

"Faith is sand on the track. Doubt is sand in the bearings."

Knowledge—Gained thru the study of the sciences of business and logic to fit for leadership in thought and action. We cannot improve without knowledge.

Opinion—The product of thought. Ideals are established and knowledge gained. This is the kind of opinion that molds the action of the world.

Service—The element of helpfulness upon the affairs of others. It is our immediate Kiwanis duty, our communities, the nation or the world.

Business—Measured by standard of its relation to others the service rendered, the ethics of its conduct, its better methods and finally its success measured in terms of proportionate gain.

Analyst of Kiwanis

"Consider the importance of an analysis of Kiwanis. Business men, professional men, to be successful must first learn to analyze. Complete understanding inevitably fits out the right road to the finish. Let us consider the importance of each of the six elements of 'Trade'. In each case it must be remembered that to achieve the results necessary to successful Kiwanis organization, the element of each must be known and distributed among Kiwanis men, if the knowledge gained is to be of any use.

Ideals—The foundation of character—personal, community and national. If the ideals of one effective Kiwanis man in a club are worthy, it will have the effect of elevating and crystallizing the ideals of others. Inspiration—The leading of others to higher planes of thought and action by example. How necessary is to personal, civic and business.

MUSIC FACTOR IN GROWTH OF CITY

Artistic As Essential To Success As In Commercial Supremacy

By Don D. John, President John Music Co., Song Leader for Lima Kiwanis Club.

Any individual living in any city should feel it to be his duty to take an every vital interest in the growth of the city in which he lives, particularly in those things, the growth of which bring beauty and strength to the city, and which are a feeling for the need of it, as well as the promotion of general culture.

A growing city will grow economically first, and this growth in many cases, will be most evident. The growth in this made artistic and ethically will needs be carefully fostered and nourished, since there are still many people in the world who do not consider beauty and its expression musically as a necessity to society, and so give it scant consideration in their serious scheme of living.

It is a psychological fact that some way, thru some medium, the human race will express itself emotionally. Society has learned to judge an individual, somewhat by his or her personal means of emotional expression, and society has placed music, as a form of expression, on a vastly higher plane than on a vasty higher plane than many of the cruder forms found active in the social body.

Lima is growing rapidly. As a city it is taking its place among those that stand for progressiveness. Concerted action—the power to accomplish—and this growth is in every way normal, and offers much to those who will be and already are a part of her municipality.

To be as great a city as it may be, Lima must give as much consideration to the arts, to music, as it gives to purely material things, or it will grow into a purely cold blooded machine whose measuring rod is the dollar and its valuation of the man within its gates will be based upon his ability to accumulate dollars.

Lima is not an un-musical city. In this city there are many musical organizations whose fame has been heralded throughout the state. The Woman's Music Club, the largest of these an outstanding figure in the state of Ohio. They have made it possible for the city to hear artists of world wide reputation and nationally known Symphony Orchestras, etc.

There is the Elks Male chorus under the direction of Prof. Fred Caldwell whose progress along this kind of work has been most gratifying and Mrs. Millie Sontag Urter has performed a ladies chorus that is surely a credit to the city. Musical education in the public schools is progressing admirably under the supervision of Prof. Mark Evans. Most all the schools of the city have victrolas and the study of music is greatly enhanced by their use.

Cities acquire what may be termed habit. There are cities with the musical habit, and such a city has always gained vastly from such characteristics. For any city to add to the culture of its public that it may see the real value of music to its people, is a great move toward a higher level of living.

Lima can acquire the habit of supporting good music because it is good and the gain of the city will be great. A high standard, whether for an individual or for a mass of individuals is a condition to be fought for, and it is always worth the sacrifice.

Growth means work, and the public of Lima will work to produce real musical growth as soon as the general public has a vision of the actual value of music in its purest form to the municipality.

The city will learn that its musical organizations are as ideal, as vital to its life and growth as any series of its commercial organizations, for it is not important tastes and knowledge that really works for culture, but that which people may have within themselves.

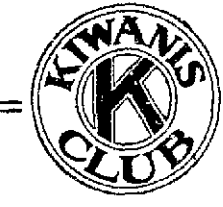

Lima will have to decide what every city has made a musical place for itself has had to decide, whether the arts of music shall be to it a fine, pure art, high in standards and serious in interest or a mere source of mediocre amusement, given the support that sincere pure music deserves, done by the Lima organization as well as those brought here, the talent that Lima has—and it has much—will develop and the city will grow away from that opinion held by so very many people—that it is not a musical city.

The mere building of many cheap, ugly houses will not make a beautiful city. And just as truly, trivial, mediocre, music will add little, deplorable little, to the culture of any city. It is only by producing and supporting the best that may be obtained or produced that public taste may become discriminating and the standards of genuine culture raised. As a city should build beautiful buildings as she should have and know good libraries so should she have and know good music.

Nearly 100,000 persons lost their lives in the Messina earthquake in 1908, although it lasted only 35 seconds.

Garbage collections have fallen off from 10 to 5 per cent since the war showing housewives are less wasteful.

How to Build A Bigger Better Business

You, Kiwanians, here is a plan that you can take home and use to build a bigger, better business.

Take a map of the locality you are doing business in—notice the radius that you are now serving—find out how much business is available there—how much can be made available by widening your delivery radius—then—start in to get a proper percentage of that business.

Here Is a Worthy Ally

In widening your delivery radius and in getting a proper percentage of that business—the dependable Gramm-Bernstein 'Pioneer' Speed Truck is eager to help you. You will find it a real co-operator—for, it is like a reliable, trustworthy, servant—it is always at your beck and call.

Fits Every-day Needs

This Speed Truck is made to fit the every-day needs of merchants. It is an ally that helps you to reach and to hold your trade. It is meant to take its place in your business as one of the lasting conveniences.

Perfectly proportioned—snappy in looks—and handsomely painted with your name on the sides—it is a forceful advertisement on wheels for your business.

So Useful—So Saving

It was designed and built to be so useful and so saving to merchants that they cannot afford to try to get along without it—if they want to hold and to build their business.

The Lowest-Priced Quality Speed Truck in America

Proud of Its Record

In hundreds of cities this Speed Truck is rendering saving service day in and day out. We are proud of its record as a useful truck that costs merchants so little to run that it can be said to pay its own way. It saves and it earns because of its few-cents-a-mile operating cost.

He Knows It Is Dependable

The merchant who uses one of the dependable Gramm-Bernstein Pioneer Speed Trucks in his business knows that he can rely on it to do his delivery work whenever and wherever he calls on it.

He knows that it will start—that it will go ten miles or a thousand and give unchanging performance—that it will throttle down to a creep and respond with a swift surge of power when he touches the accelerator.

All That 20 Years Have Taught

You get all that twenty years of honest truck making have taught in the dependable Gramm-Bernstein Pioneer Speed Truck. This experience was utilized in producing a sturdy-built, long-lived, good-looking, easy-riding, mile-eating Speed Truck.

In your community there is a dealer who will be glad to show it to you. Give him a ring!

KIWANIS, ITS IDEALS WHAT IT IS STANDING FOR

President Jackson Tells of Principle of Kiwanis Club

(BY WALTER JACKSON)
President Lima Kiwanis Club
Kiwanis is an Indian name and means "all names." Literally means "no more than the significance attached to it." It is the ideas, ideals and intentions woven into it by its users, and then assimilated and practiced by them.

With us it means, "We build—or advancement thru cooperation." Build not with concrete, iron and stone but with their equivalents in durability—the consciousness in man was not placed in this world as a selfish unit, standing out alone, but he should help the other fellow as that the divine principle meant that he should help the other fellow as well as help himself, and thus complete the brotherhood in one grand fraternity.

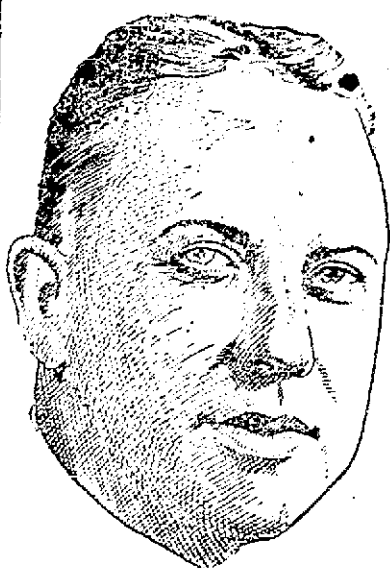

In building that edifice which knows no deterioration when the builder follows the blue prints in the fundamentals of honesty and good fellowship, and as the clouds of doubt and suspicion roll away and the light of truth sheds its beneficent influence over our otherwise darkened opinion of our fellow man's disposition, we will find that he is not half bad, but has the same desires and aspirations as we have and is only waiting for that friendly smile and clasp of the hand that throws open the door to his personality, thereby revealing an honest and conscientious craftsman ready to do his part in the work of building and cooperation.

Hence an understanding and friendship is brought about, that never could have been realized thru the cold contacts of business associations shorn of the Kiwanian ideals. Thus we see that building is not always of material construction for the minister builds on spirituality, the teacher on mentality and character, the inventor on ideas and the farmer when he prepares the land for the seeds that will grow and build for the health, happiness and contentment of the people and the nation.

Ever since men have begun to think, they have been endeavoring to find a better way both to live and to do. This has resulted in churches, innumerable, schools, clubs and organizations. Political parties endeavoring to solve the problems of government affairs, the inventor transforming ideas into facts, and yet with all these efforts our work is of no avail if we do not follow the command: "Love ye one another," and accept and practice the golden rule in its true sense.

We believe that in present methods of living and of competition that we lose the fellowship that is rightly ours and which can only be secured thru proper cooperation. This is more readily brought about if we pause long enough in our onward rush to become acquainted, otherwise each swing of the pendulum ticks off a lost opportunity perhaps of knowing a real prince among men.

We do not claim to have discovered a new way, but just to have taken from the shelf of wisdom an old truth or principle that has always existed and having brushed away the dust of selfishness applied this to our own needs. However we claim no copyright and it is for all mankind as well, but as a club we have demonstrated its practicability and pass it along for general use.

We are not of the close corporation or the clanish type. Selfishness is eliminated in our business and social relationships, thereby setting up the standard of unselfish service charity in its broader sense and a business relationship four square.

The pages of every individual's future history is pure and white and each one writes his record thereon. The true Kiwanian takes pride in writing only such history as will stand for honesty, manhood and respect, and as the base of action oblains in thought we aim to think well before acting.

We believe that in the development of these forces, that not only our own members but all mankind are placed on a higher plane of perfection and that the golden rule ceases to be only a quotation but becomes a dynamic force thru its proper application, and is crystallized in deeds—not em-balanced in theory.

Finally after all has been said, Kiwanis is something that is felt, not seen; lived, not preached and has its central connection in the glorious song that came to the lonely shepherds out of the darkness: "Peace on earth and good will to men."

Such is the feeling of the 55,000 hustling business and professional men thruout the United States and Canada as they gather at their

"We Build"

THIS is the slogan of Kiwanis, and like a true Kiwanian, we set out a few months ago to build an institution so that it should flourish and grow. We first dug our foundations and laid them on the rocks of honesty, knowing that a house so built shall never fall. The inside of our walls were filled with clever merchandise and topping all was the very reasonableness with which we marked it.

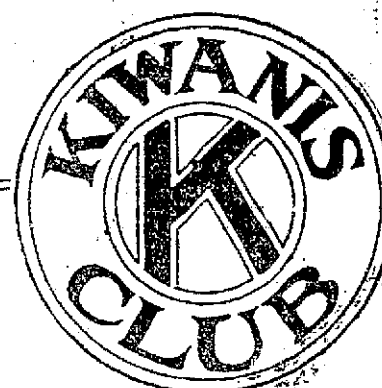

Bernard's has flourished and is now the headquarters for the women of Lima and the environs.
